VOL. XI—NO. 2404. NEW-YORK, THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 1862. PRICE TWO CENTS.

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Arrival of the Entire Force in the Vicinity of Fortress Monroe.

Preparations to Move to Its New Field of Operations.

SEVERAL DIVISIONS ALREADY EMBARKED.

Affairs at Williamsburgh and Yorktown.

[From Our Special Correspondent.]

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, Aug. 19, 1862.

While passing through Williamsburgh, I paid a visit to the Union and Confederate hospitals. In the latter I found five persons wounded, all of whom have been contained there by their wounds since the battle of the 5th of May. Their names are as follows:

Thomas P. Fore, of Duck Spring, Do Kalb County, Ala.—thigh.

Wm. H. Jackson, Charlotte County, Va.—thigh.

Samuel I. Sheppard, Pleasant Ridge, Miss.—knee.

Wm. A. Walker, Thompsonville, Rockingham County, N. C.—thigh.

All these patients are in the care of a careful hospital steward named H. F. Bausman, of the Fifth Pennsylvania Cavalry, and are doing well. We give their names for the satisfaction of their friends, with whom they have had no communication since they were wounded.

In the Union Hospital there are only five patients with light cases of fever, who are doing well. It is in charge of Dr. F. Wasse. An impression prevailed that the Cavalry Company now occupying the town would be withdrawn. There can be no object in holding Williamsburgh, and even Yorktown may be abandoned after our troops shall have embarked.

The army is thoroughly out of reach of the enemy's guns on the Pamunkey, and is already in process of embarkation for another field of operation.

Fulton's corps performed a very rapid march from Yorktown, making the whole distance of nearly 30 miles in less than one day. The cool weather contributed greatly to the comfort of the march. The division of Gen. Morris, with the Staff, reached Hampton yesterday afternoon, and the wagon train, with the whole corps, were comfortably encamped before night. This morning they took up their line of march to Newport's News, from which place they will immediately embark.

Sykes' Division are already on board of transports.

Sumner's Corps, which formed the rear guard of the army, with Franklin's Brigade forming the extreme rear, arrived at Yorktown yesterday, all safe and sound. They will embark from that place, on board of the Atlantic, Baltic, Vanderbilt and other first-class transports. The entire wagon train of this corps arrived at Hampton and encamped to-day. They met with no accident on the road. They passed the Chickahominy on Saturday night.

Meagher's Brigade, preceded that of Thomas Kearny and Franklin's corps are yet to come in. It is supposed they took the road by the way of Cole's Ferry and the Burnt Ordinary.

Affairs at Yorktown, under the command of Gen. Van Allen, are in the best possible condition. The health of the place is good, and the troops occupying the intrenchments in the best of spirits. Important improvements, looking to the sanitary condition of the place, have been made under the supervision of Capt. Kevran, Provost-Marshal, and the town is in strong condition for defence.

A neat cemetery has been inclosed outside of the breastworks, in which some 200 of our troops are buried, each having a board with the name of each person, his regiment and time of decease, engraved on it.

The country ought to set apart a day of thanksgiving for the deliverance of the Army of the Potomac from one of the most unhealthy and uncomfortable locations in the United States. E. S.

IMPORTANT FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Unprecedented Reception of One Hundred and Sixty-one Union Prisoners from Richmond.

"What they Say of Dixie—Horrible Treatment of Southern Unionists—Capture of a Rebel Spy with Letters, &c.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

OLD POINT, Tuesday, Aug. 19, 1862.

One of the most soul-stirring and enlivening scenes ever witnessed here—or, indeed, anywhere else—was the arrival last evening of one hundred and sixty-one of our officers—captured prisoners of war—from the rebel clutches—including the remaining two of the old hostages who went with Cassenas, viz., Lieut.-Col. G. W. Nare, of the old Second Kentucky, and Maj. Jas. D. Pearce, of the Thirty-eighth New-York. They came from Aiken's Landing, on board the Star, in the charge of Capt. Marvan, of whose kindness and politeness they all speak in the highest terms, and go on this afternoon, in a special boat to Washington.

I could give you a full account of the very interesting events which occurred during the transit of these officers down the James River, but the graphic description forwarded by this mail from your correspondent "THAXUS" (one of the recaptured prisoners do heard)—and which he send to me in manuscript—will be found so simple and entertaining, that there is little or nothing to add to it.

A Richmond paper, a short time since, had the sagacity to prophesy that these prisoners, on returning to their long-suffering homes, would be "silent ministers" in the cause of secession, meaning, doubtless, that the excessive kindness they had received, and the insight they had had into rebel power and determination, would not only exalt the traitors in our estimation, but scare us in contemplating them. The rebel sheet was right. These brave fellows will be misunderstood, but not exactly in the sense the writer meant. If, when they come to preach about their experiences during the time they were confined in Secesia, they do not quicken the pulse, madden the brain and arouse the energies of our Northern people to crush these infernal monsters, then there is no amount of ignominy, brutality and wrong that can arouse the Northern mind from its fatal and infatuated slumber.

Two prisoners of the old stock are yet held as prisoners, at Salisbury, N. C. They are Surgeon G. D. Slocum, of the gunboat Wachusetts, who was taken at City Point a short time ago, and Surgeon J. B. Herman, of the Fifth Ohio, a well-known Cincinnatian.

These returned prisoners all corroborate what we have hitherto heard of the filthiness of the Richmond prisons, and of the vile treatment of the rebels toward our prisoners—but all that they suffer is mildness itself compared with the horrible sufferings they reserve for the prisoners who are Unionists of the South. These unfortunate creatures—many of them decrepid old men past the age of 50—are confined alone in loathsome dungeons, literally deprived of the food and clothing necessary to sustain life, and are rapidly dying off from the horrible treatment to which they are subjected. Any Southern prison is hell, but the deepest hell is reserved for those noble spirits who, in spite of all threats and temptations, still dare to look with affection on the flag of their fathers.

But many of these unfortunate creatures are, to all intents and purposes, prisoners of war, and should be so considered by our Government. Among them are many loyal Kentuckians and Virginians, who were taken prisoners while on picket duty as Home Guards. I was in the fort this morning when a son came in to represent to Maj.-Gen. Dix the case of his poor old father, who is at this moment one of the unhappy victims to whom I have just alluded. The General, with his usual kindness of heart, was touched at the recital, and promised to have the matter brought before the Government. God grant he may succeed in saving this unhappy old man, and others situated as he is.

A rebel spy, named T. H. Pearce, has just been caught conveying letters from Yorktown to Richmond, and has been brought to Fortress Monroe, no doubt with the intention of being transferred to the Rip Raps.

A rumor has been prevailing here, to-day, that our army, under McClellan, has been attacked in crossing the Peninsula to Yorktown; but it is unmeaning slander. Our army was already so far advanced before it was known here that the rebels had not yet awakened up to a knowledge of our movement, that if they have made any attempt upon our rear it can be but a very small affair. Besides, I have just learned, from unquestionable authority, that the Fifth New-Hampshire, which forms part of the rear-guard of Sumner's corps, arrived safely at Yorktown this morning.

I send you a whole batch of rebel papers to the latest date, and some of them are interesting. One article—that of the Richmond Examiner, of Aug. 15—has a long discussion about cotton and cloth, by which you will see how completely they find themselves between two stools; afraid of starvation if they don't grow corn, and of annihilation if they don't continue to grow cotton. The Dispatch, of the 16th, tries to be very severe upon Gen. Cassenas, but perhaps he will manage to survive the onslaught.

Interesting Letter from a National Officer, Lately a Prisoner.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

ON BOARD FLAG OF TRUCE BOAT STAR, MONDAY MORNING, Aug. 18, 1862.

With hopes long deferred, yet hearts not sick, on the 5th of August we received orders to "pack up for home." This was glorious news to all, and especially to those who had spent 13 months in "Southern prisons," living on "Southern hospitality," e. g., "rotten meat and musty bread." But no shouts or demonstrations of joy followed the announcement, as we had once before been ordered to prepare to go home, and only went to Richmond to be sent South again.

On Monday, the 11th, we filed out through the prison gate, and marched for the depot. No wagons had been provided to take the sick, so they were carried by their comrades. On arriving at the depot, the cars were found to be unprovided, and a delay in the hot sun was awful to the poor, suffering, emaciated sick, and one of them fainted away several times. Dr. HALL, Surgeon of Post, asked permission to take him into the "C. S. A. Hospital," but was told by Maj. SMITH, C. S. A., "No C—d Yankee should pollute that hallowed spot." The lady in charge of the hospital remarked, also: "I'll never permit a Yankee to come here." Glorious chivalry! Generous, warm-hearted Southern lady! Alas! alas! what will the world do for examples of true charity and hospitality, when all the Southerners shall die on their "sacred soil!"

But let us not condemn them all, for even there, a noble woman was found. One came forward, and had the young man taken to her home, where she treated him with all the kindness of a mother for forty-eight hours, when he died, and she had him buried in her own garden. This is not the only generous act she has done. Often the sick and dying prisoner has blessed her for her motherly kindness, and many is the little delicacy, sent by her, that found its way to the sick in the hospital. She is not rich, save in the pure, generous impulses of a noble heart, and wherever a Southern prisoner may be found there will go up to Heaven a prayer for her and her noble children. A true Southern woman by heart, yet having what few of them have, a heart large enough to take in all the poor and needy of the whole world, every real gentleman and lady of North Carolina ought to be proud of one who dares to do right, in spite of the mean, cowardly clamor of those who cannot rise above the prejudices of their section.

One hundred and sixty officers and one hundred and forty privates were placed, or rather crammed, into cattle cars—two of them box-cars, the rest open. We were in charge of Lieut.-Col. JAMES, a fine soldier and gentleman.

We left behind us, with no tears of regret, the great Owl Goddess. This fellow deserves a passing remark. He was once a peddler and pimp, but, alas! for all human greatness, he has now fallen to be a Confederate Colonel! When one of our officers died, the request was made that the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY, be allowed to follow him to his grave. "No," said ye brave and gallant Colonel, "you have invaded us, and I'll show you no honors." That tells his history, so let him pass.

Away we started for Richmond. Smash we went into a "hand car," split six niggers and lost our "right of way;" laid up for six hours, started again, broke down the tender; spent four hours more; got hungry enough to be glad to get some bad bacon and worse bread; rode on again, and spent the remainder of the night at Raleigh. No crowds assembled as we passed along. Old men and cripples, or soldiers, were all that could be seen.

After much shaking, little sleep, great hunger and small amount of food, good appetite and bad bacon, we reached Petersburgh, Va., Tuesday, 11 o'clock P. M. Staid in the cars all night, got breakfast at a hotel in the morning, by permission of Col. JONES, for which act of humanity he was arrested. We were placed in depôt and guarded all day, until 4 o'clock P. M. Wednesday, when we again started for Richmond.

On our arrival there we were marched to Bell Island, and kindly permitted to sleep supperless on the bare ground, and be marched to the Libby Prison on Thursday morning. The condition of our men on Bell Island is deplorable. Hundreds are sick. All are destitute and poorly fed.

On arriving at the Libby Prison we were provided with plenty of good beef and bread, and cots to sleep on, by the Quartermaster of the Post, Col. WAYNE.

This "Old Wayne," is the best mean man I ever knew. A Northerner by birth, yet he affects great contempt for all Yankees; a good genial fellow at heart, yet he manages to work himself up into an abusive wretch. With no education or refinement, yet with natural tact and shrewdness enough to be the best Quartermaster I ever saw South. "Taking him all in all," he would pass for a "smart but unprincipled Yankee."

On Friday, the 15th, an order came for the release of Cols. WINDER and CASSENAS, Lieut.-Col. BOWMAN and Major YOUNG. Though all were glad to see these noble men go forth from their long imprisonment, yet a feeling of gloom fell on the rest as we were told it was likely that we would be left to the pest, and then paroled. Great discussions arose as to the probability of our ever seeing the "glorious old flag again," which gave rise to the organization of the "Croakers" and "Anti-Croakers." The "Croakers" first held a meeting—Major POTTER, Thirty-eighth New-York, in the chair. He stated the object of the meeting to be "to express our feelings on the present state of affairs," giving it as his opinion we were "played out," of "no account," and were "entirely forgotten." "Do you believe it, Croakers?" "Yes." "Well, then, croak like the raven." And so the croaking commenced. But soon news came that we also were to be exchanged, not paroled, and the "Anti-Croakers," under Capt. AYRES, held a meeting, and the "Croakers" joined in a body.

Sunday morning, the carriages which we had hired to take us to the place for exchange came up, and at 9 o'clock A. M. all the officers left the "Richmond prison," for home. We took nothing with us, as the destitute condition of our men in the hospitals caused us to leave all our clothing and money for the sick.

The dust on the road was awful, yet, on our way home, what did we care for comfort?

On coming to "AXIS's place," we found that gentleman happy, with the "spirit in him." He swore Gen. THOMAS was a gentleman, and one of our number, by way of a joke, remarked that he thought Gen. THOMAS a regular "Seat," which brought down AXIS's wrath and a threat to have him cashiered. Some one then said: "Gen. THOMAS is the staunchest opposer of rebellion we have." "No," said AXIS, "he's a man of feeling." A lady, on her way North, was with us, and though specially requested to do so by several officers, this Virginia gentleman, AXIS, would not invite her to take a seat in his house, and so she sat, all day, in the hot sun, within a few rods of his door.

When the flag of truce boat Star came up and we could see the "good old flag we love," the enthusiasm was great.

It would have done you good to have seen the old Massachusetts prisoners, as they looked on that old flag, long, weary months in Southern prisons, insults and hardships, and "hope long deferred," had made them remember Liberty and its starry flag as sacred things. Left almost to the last in the vile prisons of the South, it may be, forgotten by their Government, yet they have hearts filled with the fire of patriotism and the love of home. They are generally, from long confinement, in poor health, but a short time will find them ready for the field.

We found Capt. MIDDLEMAS, a genial, kind-hearted officer, on the boat to receive us. Capt. NEWELL, in charge of the boat, and Dr. HARRIS on a pleasure trip; both were active in making us as comfortable as possible.

The passage down the river is pleasant and beautiful. I write now as we pass our fleet, and the cheers from every vessel ring in my ears, and our hearty cheers answer them.

At 7 o'clock P. M., Monday, we arrived at the wharf at "Old Point," and were given a sort of celebration at the Hygeia Hotel. But I must bring this letter to a close.

I send you a list of citizen prisoners confined at Salisbury, N. C., also those of Richmond. They are in a pitifully destitute condition, and sickness is fast thinning their numbers. Yours truly,

THAXUS.

LATE NEWS FROM RICHMOND.

The Rebels Profess to Have No Knowledge of McClellan's Movements or Executions—Wounded Prisoners from Cedar Creek—The Murder of Gen. McCook—Interesting Miscellaneous News.

We have received from our Fortress Monroe correspondent copies of the Richmond papers to Aug 16, from which we make extracts of interest.

The Examiner, of Aug. 16, says:

"We have no news of interest from the enemy on the south side. The Petersburgh Express, whose columns for a time teemed with the very latest from City Point, and innumerable other points, now comes to us with the sad admission that 'we could learn nothing whatever of the enemy's movements on James River, yesterday.' Where is the 'intelligent free negro?' What has become of the 'man with the strong eye-glass' who used to watch the Yankees from the highest points in Prince George? Have both these invaluable reporters gone the way of 'our cavalry,' who, since the taste they obtained of the enemy's quality, have been content to snuff the Yankees from afar?"

The following is also from the Examiner of the 16th:

"Two hundred wounded Yankees fell into our hands at Cedar Creek, and were conveyed to Charlottesville. The majority of them are said to be too seriously wounded to warrant much expectation of recovery. There are among them a dozen or more commissioned officers. A Colonel has had a leg and an arm amputated."

The same paper, in speaking of the latest foreign news, claims the strongest sympathies of France and England.

The Examiner has the following regarding the events which followed the recent cowardly murder of Gen. McCook:

"Buell is announced to have hung fire respectable officers of the South in retaliation for the death of his General, McCook. This is declared a brutal and bloody murder. Fiendish acts are declared to have been committed on the people and property happening to lie in the locality of the attack on McCook. Gen. BUELL being known as one of the most lenient of the Yankee Generals, the fact proves that these acts of arson and hanging emanate from headquarters. They allege outrages upon widows and orphans, and upon the privacy of feelings of women, and wholesale plunder and destruction. Something must be done to put an end to this insolence, these grievous and insulting outrages. We have the subjects upon which to inflict the terrible retribution. The public mind is convinced, unless full and fierce retaliation is inflicted, this system of murder and outrage will continue to go on. How can we hold demons in awe unless we treat them as demons?"

Speaking of the election in North Carolina, the Examiner claims in the election of VANCE over JOHNSON 30,000 to 40,000 majority. No important principles respecting the settlement of the present war have been decided; that the platform of principles of both parties are identical.

THE CEDAR MOUNTAIN FIGHT.

OFFICIAL DISPATCH FROM GEN. JACKSON.

HEADQUARTERS, VALLEY DISTRICT, Aug. 11—8½ P. M.

COLONEL: On the evening of the 9th inst. God blessed our arms with another victory. The battle was near Cedar Run, about six miles from Culpeper Court-house. The enemy, according to the statement of prisoners, consisted of BANKS', McDOWELL'S and STEUL'S commands. We have over four hundred prisoners, including Brig.-Gen. PRICE. While our list of killed is less than that of the enemy, yet we have to mourn the loss of some of our best officers and men. Brig.-Gen. CHARLES S. WINDER was mortally wounded while ably discharging his duty at the head of his command, which was the advance of the left wing of the army. We have collected about 1,500 small arms, and other ordnance stores.

I am, Colonel, your obd't serv't,

T. J. JACKSON, Major-General.

Col. R. H. CHILTON, A. A. G.

FROM GORDONSVILLE.

From Richmond Dispatch, 16th.

We are unable to learn anything of special interest from our lines about Gordonsville yesterday. Our latest reports, up to 12½ o'clock yesterday, represent everything quiet, with no fighting of consequence since the battle of Saturday. It is said, with some grounds of probability, that the forces under POPE are concentrating in Madison County, and will perhaps attempt a flank movement on Gen. JACKSON, while BURNSIDE, who is being heavily reinforced by McCLELLAN, advances through Culpeper and Orange.

Most of our wounded in the fight of Saturday are now at Charlottesville and Lovingston, Nelson County. Some are also in the hospitals in Lynchburgh.

From the Gordonsville Comment, Feb.

It was told and believed on the streets yesterday that Gen. JACKSON had fallen back to within a mile or two of Gordonsville, where his forces were drawn up in line of battle to resist POPE, who was advancing on him with three separate heavy columns. A very little investigation was necessary to convince us that story had its origin in the fertile imagination of one of our idle citizens.

Up to a late hour last night there was no news from the lines of the Rapidan.

From gentlemen who came down from Gordonsville yesterday morning, we learn that there is as little known in that place of our army's movements as in Richmond.

MOVEMENTS ON JAMES RIVER.

From Examiner, 16th.

There are between fifteen hundred and two thousand of McCLELLAN's command intrenched at Coggin's Point, in Prince George County, on the south side of James River. From this base of operations small marauding parties daily sally forth into the country to steal negroes, horses and cattle, and to rob Secesh rebels. In the pursuit of these congenial occupations, they are undisturbed by even so much as the sight of our cavalry. They are living on the fat of the land, with no man to make them afraid.

On the north side of the James the enemy's operations are more circumscribed and innocent. They keep up, morning and evening, a mighty beating of drums, and braying of horns, which are heard by our pickets at Malvern Hill, and by the residents of the tract of country known as Curle's Neck. But for the past two days the sound of these warlike instruments has sounded more distant than previously. On Tuesday their din preached from Herald's, whereas, on yesterday, "faint from further distance borne." It seemed to come from Berkeley.

But whilst the grand army is inactive, or idly parading to the music of brass bands, the fleet is on the alert. The gunboats patrol the river vigilantly between Malvern Hill and Varina, and fire upon every cloud of smoke or dust that arises above the trees. A solitary horseman riding along the dusty roads within three miles of the river is not safe from their missiles. Our pickets occupy Malvern Hill, and are in constant danger of their shells.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FROM YORKTOWN.

We have seen a gentleman, just returned from West Point, on York River. There were no Yankees in that neighborhood. One day last week, a gunboat had come up to West Point, from the direction of Gloucester Point, for the purpose of procuring vegetables.

GONE.

All of the Yankee officers captured on the Chickahominy left yesterday for home, old Varina, one hundred and twenty-four on foot, the rest in Old Virginia chariots.

ARRIVALS FROM BALTIMORE.

A great number of young men are daily arriving in this city from Baltimore. They represent that city as under a reign of terror. The draft has spread utter consternation among all classes. Southern sympathizers are, of course, filled with horror by the prospect of being forced into the ranks; the Unionists who have been clamoring for a vigorous prosecution of the war, are causing about how to evade the draft and save their persons.

EXECUTION OF A DESERTER.

On yesterday morning the sentence of death upon MARION HOGAN, a deserter from RANSOM's Brigade, was carried into execution, at his former rendezvous, at their camp on the Williamsburgh road, about 2½ miles from the city. Five bullets simultaneously pierced his heart, and he fell dead without a struggle.

THE BATTLE OF SLAUGHTER MOUNTAIN.

Additional Lists of Killed and Wounded.

Casualties in Gen. Augur's Division.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

CULPEPER COURT-HOUSE, Sunday, Aug. 17, 1862.

The following is a correct summary of the casualties killed and wounded in Gen. AUGUR's Division:

FIRST BRIGADE, COMMANDED BY GEN. GRANT.

Kerr's Cavalry—2 men missing.

Twenty-ninth Ohio—6 killed, 26 wounded, 7 missing.

Fifth Ohio—12 officers wounded; 19 men killed, 59 wounded, 2 missing.

Seventh Ohio—3 officers killed, 9 wounded; 26 men killed, 134 wounded, 29 missing.

Sixty-sixth Ohio—4 officers wounded, 1 missing; 14 men killed, 79 wounded, 3 missing.

SECOND BRIGADE, GEN. PRINCE.

One Hundred and Eleventh Pennsylvania Volunteers—1 officer missing; 7 men killed, 73 wounded, 38 missing.

One Hundred and Ninth Pennsylvania—4 officers killed; 2 wounded, 3 missing; 16 men killed, 66 wounded, 40 missing.

One Hundred and Second Pennsylvania—1 officer killed, 3 wounded, 1 missing; 11 men killed, 66 wounded, 29 missing.

Eighth and Twelfth United States Regulars—3 officers wounded, 4 missing; 18 men killed, 36 wounded, 52 missing.

Third Maryland Volunteers—3 officers wounded, 2 missing; 18 men killed, 43 wounded, 3 missing.

THIRD BRIGADE, GEN. GREEN.

First District of Columbia Volunteers—1 officer wounded; 5 men wounded, 22 missing.

Seventy-eighth New-York—1 officer missing; 4 men wounded, 36 missing. [One entire company of this regiment were taken prisoners.]

Total officers killed, 9; wounded, 40; missing, 15. Men killed, 140; wounded, 670; missing, 271—making, in the aggregate, 1,103 men killed, wounded and missing.

The division entered the field with 140 commissioned officers, and 2,500 men—altogether 2,640—losing over fifty per cent. of its officers, and forty per cent. of its men.

The fighting on the right wing was done principally by infantry, and the casualties in Gen. WILLIAMS' Division we were assured, yesterday, by a General officer, will exceed those in Gen. AUGUR's Division at least fifteen per cent. The killed in the latter division, in proportion to the numbers engaged, will also vastly exceed those in the former.

True, many of the wounds are mere flesh wounds, from which the patient will soon recover; but there is a larger proportion of serious and dangerous wounds than has heretofore been the case in the various battles in Virginia. About 30 per cent. of the wounded will either die or be rendered unfit for service hereafter. So it will easily be perceived that the battle of Cedar Mountain has been the bloodiest and most desperate of the war.

DETAILED LISTS OF CASUALTIES.

We have already published lists of the killed and wounded in the Fifth, Seventh, Twenty-ninth and Sixty-sixth Ohio Regiments, of Gen. GRANT's Brigade, AUGUR's Division. The following lists complete the catalogue of casualties in that brigade:

GUERRILLA MORGAN'S EXPLOITS.

An Official Report of His Raid into Kentucky.

THE WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

GOSSIP FROM RICHMOND.

By way of Memphis we have received a late slip of that attractive sheet, the Grenada Appeal. It furnishes us the following extract:

AN OFFICIAL REPORT FROM MORGAN.

HEADQUARTERS MORGAN'S COMMAND, KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 30.

Maj.-Gen. E. Kirby Smith, Commanding Department of East Tennessee:

GENERAL: I have the honor to report that, upon the day of the engagement at Tompkinsville, a full report of which I have already sent you, I moved my command—consisting of my own regiment, the Georgia regiment of partisan rangers, commanded by Col. A. A. Hunt, and Major Ganz's Texas squadron, to which was attached two companies of Tennessee cavalry, in the direction of Glasgow, which place I reached at 10 o'clock last night.

The enemy's commissary stores, clothing, etc., were in the town in charge of a guard, which fled at our approach. The commissary stores, clothing, etc., were burned, and the guns were distributed among my men. The prisoners—about 300 of whom were paroled when I left Knoxville.

From Glasgow I proceeded along the main Louisville road to Barren River, halting for a time near Cave City—my object being to induce the belief that I intended crossing my command at the bridge between Bowling Green and Louisville. I caused wires connecting with every telegraph station on the road to be attached to the telegraph line near Horse Cave, and operated for a number of discomfiture.

At Barren River I detached three companies under Capt. Jack Allen, to move forward, repairing and burning bridges as they went, and the troops along the Louisville railroad might be prevented from returning to Louisville.

The following morning I moved on towards Lexington, distant thirty-five miles from Barren River. At 11 o'clock at night I reached the bridge over Rolling Fork, six miles from Lebanon. The enemy had received information of my approach from their spies, and my advance guard was fired upon at the bridge. After a short fight the force at the bridge was dispersed, and the planks, which had been torn up, having been replaced, the command moved forward to Lebanon—about two miles from the town a skirmish took place between two companies that I caused to move around, and deploy, and a force of the enemy, that had taken the road, which was seen ended by its dispersion and capture. Lieut.-Col. A. Y. Jonson, commanding the troops in town, surrendered, and I entered the place. The prisoners taken, in number about sixty-five, were paroled.

I immediately possession of the telegraph and forwarded a dispatch to Col. Jonson, informing him that Col. Owen, with the Sixteenth Indiana Regiment, had been sent to his assistance; so I at once left Lebanon, with the command of Lieut.-Col. Martin, to destroy the railroad bridge on the Lebanon branch, which I successfully accomplished in that time, before the arrival of the troops. I burned two large buildings full of commissary stores, consisting of about 60 sacks of coffee and a large amount of all other supplies in bulk, marked for the army at Cumberland Gap. I also destroyed a very large amount of clothing, boots, etc. I burned the hospital buildings, which appeared to have been recently erected and fitted up, together with about 30 wagons and six new ambulances. I found in the place a large store of medicines, 5,000 stand of arms with accoutrements, about 2,000 sabres, and an immense quantity of ammunition, shell, etc. I distributed the best arms among my command, and loaded one wagon with them, to be given to the recruits that I expected to join me. I also loaded one wagon with ammunition. The remainder of the arms, ammunition, and the hospital and medical stores I destroyed.

While in Lebanon, I ascertained from citizens of the place that I intercepted, that the force which had been stationed from Louisville Junction to reinforce Lieut.-Col. Jonson, had met and driven back the force under Capt. Jack Allen, killing one of his men, and preventing him from accomplishing the purpose for which he had been detailed.

I proceeded from Lebanon on the following day through Springfield to Mackville, at which point I was attacked by Home Guards. Two of my men were taken prisoners, and one severely wounded. I remained at Mackville that night to recover the prisoners, which I did early the next morning. I then left for Harrodsburgh, capturing a Federal Captain and Lieutenant on the road; reached Harrodsburgh at 12½ o'clock, and found that the Home Guard of all that portion of country had fled to Lexington. A force was also stationed on the bridge where the Lexington road crossed the Kentucky River. My reception at this place was very encouraging. The whole population appeared to turn out and vie with each other as who should show us most attention.

I left Harrodsburgh at 6 o'clock the same evening, and moved to Lawrenceburgh, twenty miles distant, threatening Frankfort in order to draw off the troops from Georgetown. Remained there until the return of my scouts from Frankfort, who brought the information that there was a force in Frankfort of two or three thousand men, consisting of Home Guards collected from the adjacent counties, and a few regular troops.

From Lawrenceburgh I proceeded to Shryke's Ferry, on the Kentucky River, raised the boat, which had been sunken, and crossed that evening, reaching Versailles at 7 o'clock. I found this place abandoned by its defenders, who had fled to Lexington; remained there that night, and on the next morning marched toward Georgetown. While at Versailles, I took about three hundred Government horses and mules.

I passed through Midway on the road to Georgetown, and was informed, just before reaching the place, that a train from Frankfort was nearly due, with two regiments of Federals. I tore up the track and posted a howitzer to command it, and formed my command along the line of the road; but the train was warned of our presence, and returned to Frankfort. Having taken possession of the telegraph office, I intercepted a dispatch asking if the road was clear, and if it would be safe to start the train from Lexington. I replied to send the train, and made preparations to receive it; but it was also turned back and went.

I reached Georgetown, twelve miles from Lexington, that evening. Just before entering the town, we were informed that a small force of Home Guards had made ready to oppose us. I sent them word to surrender their arms, and they should not be molested, but they fled. The people of Georgetown also welcomed us with gladness, and provided my troops with everything that they needed. I remained at Georgetown two days, during which time I sent out a company under Capt. McMillan to destroy the track between Midway and Lexington, and Midway and Frankfort, and to blow up the stone bridge on that road, which he successfully accomplished. Hearing that a company of Home Guards were encamped at Stamping Ground, thirteen miles distant, I dispatched a company under Capt. Hamilton to break up the encampment, burn the tents and stores, and destroy the guns. This was also accomplished—Capt. Hamilton taking about prisoners and all their guns, and destroying a large amount of medical and commissary supplies. I also, while at Georgetown, sent Capt. Castleman, with his company, to destroy the railroad bridges between Paris and Lexington, and report to me at Winchester. This was done.

Determining to move on Paris, with a view of recruiting, and hearing that the place was being rapidly fortified from Cynthiana, I deemed it of great importance to cut off the communication from that place, while I drew off the troops that were already there, by a joint on Lexington. I therefore dispatched a portion of two companies toward Lexington, with instructions to drive the pickets to the very entrenchments of the city, while I moved the command toward Cynthiana. When I arrived within three miles of the place I learned that it was defended by a considerable force of infantry, cavalry and artillery. I dispatched the Texas squadron, under Major Ganz, to enter the town on the right, and the Georgia regiment to cross the river and get into the rear, while I moved my own regiment, with the artillery under the command of Lieut. J. H. Hanna, down the Georgetown pike. A severe engagement took place, which lasted about an hour and a half, before the enemy were driven into the town and compelled to surrender. I took four hundred and twenty prisoners, including about seventy Home Guards. I regret to have to mention the loss of eight of my men in killed and twenty-nine wounded. The enemy's loss was ninety-four killed and wounded, according to their own account. Their excess in killed and wounded is remarkable, as they fought us from behind stone fences and fired at us from buildings as we charged through the town. We captured a very fine 12-pounder brass piece of artillery, together with a large number of small arms, and about three hundred Government horses and mules. The arms and Government stores were burned, as I had many of the horses as we could bring with us were kept. I found a very large supply of commissary and medical stores, tents, guns and ammunition at this place, which I destroyed. The paroled prisoners were sent under an escort to Falmouth, where they took the train for Cincinnati.

I proceeded next morning toward Paris, and was met on the road by a bearer of a flag of truce, offering the unconditional surrender of the place. I reached Paris at 4 o'clock, remained there that night, and started toward Winchester next morning. As my command was filing out of Paris, on the Winchester pike, I discovered a large force of Federals coming toward the town from the direction of Lexington. They immediately countermarched, supposing, no doubt, that my intention was to get into the rear. This enabled me to bring off my entire command without molestation, with the exception of two of my pickets, who were probably surprised. I reached Winchester that day at 12 o'clock, and remained until 4 o'clock, when I proceeded toward Richmond. At Winchester I found a number of arms, which we destroyed.

I arrived at Richmond at 12 o'clock the night, and remained until daylight, when I moved on to Crab Orchard. I had scarcely left Richmond when the people appeared ready to rise and join us, but I received information that large bodies of cavalry under Gen. Clay Smith, and Capt. Wisenhunter, Morgan, Munday and Wheeler, were endeavoring to surround me at this place. So I moved on to Crab Orchard. There I attached my portable battery to the telegraph running from Stanford to Louisville, and learned the exact position of the enemy's forces, and directed my movements accordingly.

Leaving Crab Orchard at 11 o'clock, I arrived at Stanford, distant twenty-eight miles, at sundown. I took possession of the telegraph, and countermanded all the previous orders that had been given by Gen. Boyle to intercept me, and remained in perfect security all night. I found a very large supply of commissary stores, clothing, blankets, shoes, hats, etc., at this place, which were destroyed. I also found the arms that had been taken from Gen. Zollicoffer, together with large quantities of shell and ammunition, all of which were destroyed. I also burned at this place, and Crab Orchard, about one hundred and thirty Government wagons.

From Somerset I proceeded to Monticello, and from thence to between Livingston and Sparta, where my command is now encamped.

I left Knoxville on the 4th day of this month with about 900 men, and returned to Livingston on the 29th inst. with nearly 1,900, having been absent just 24 days, during which time I traveled over a thousand miles, captured 17 towns, destroyed all the Government supplies and arms in them, dispersed about 1,500 Home Guards, and paroled nearly 1,600 regular troops. I lost in killed, wounded and missing, of the number that I carried into Kentucky, about 80.

I take great pleasure in testifying to the gallant bravery and efficiency of my whole command. There were individual instances of daring so conspicuous that I must beg the privilege of referring to them. Private Moore, of Louisiana, a member of Company A, of my regiment, particularly distinguished himself in leading a charge at Cynthiana, which had an important effect in winning the battle. The reports of the regimental commanders, which are inclosed, are respectfully referred to for further instances of individual bravery and efficiency. I feel indebted to all my aids for the promptness with which my orders were executed; and particularly to Col. St. Leon Garesche, for the assistance which his experience afforded me.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN H. MORGAN, Acting Brigadier-General, C. S. A.

R. A. Alston, A. A. G.

FROM RICHMOND.

Mr. John R. Thompson, "Dixie," writes from Richmond under date of July 31:

"There is an unusual activity in military matters just now. Yesterday a long train of artillery, numbering more than fifty pieces with their caissons, passed up Main-street, attracting great attention, for each battery had signalized itself in the recent battles before this city, and several of them carried along with their own guns the beautiful Parrots, Dahlgrens and howitzers captured from the enemy. It is not necessary to say which direction this artillery brigade took in leaving the town. To-day we have had some cavalry regiments and a considerable infantry force on the march for other scenes of action. The signs are that renewed fighting will occur before August is a week old.

"It is generally believed that McClellan is moving off his entire force from that charming and most eligible position at Berkeley, which the correspondents of the Northern Press thought so capital a point d'appui, and where Rev. Dr. Francis Vinton declared he was nearer to Richmond than he had been at any previous time. The sons of July have done their work with his troops. Ague and fever, bilious and typhoid, and all varieties of febrile complaints, except Yellow Jack, have prevailed among them to an alarming extent, and even the Government at Washington, that soulless and merciless body of tyrants, has become frightened at the disappearance of McClellan's thousands. Lincoln might well say that he could not account for the astonishing falling off in the numbers under the young Napoleon's command. So that McClellan has determined upon another 'change in his base line.' At least such is believed to be the fact in Richmond.

"Already a large number of transports have gone down on James River, and more are reported daily as on their way. Their destination is doubtless Fredericksburg, where they will reinforce Gen. Pope. In a few days McClellan will probably go to take the command of the entire body in person, and make his third attempt to get to Richmond from this new line of approach. We may therefore expect a conflict upon a grand scale ere long, somewhere on the confines of Caroline and Hanover Counties. If repulsed there, as we have every confidence the Yankees will be, nothing more can be done by them until the fresh three hundred thousand volunteers or conscripts of the North are ready for the field.

"No little dissatisfaction is expressed that in the cartel for the exchange of prisoners no provision has been made for the liberation of the non-combatant Confederate citizens who have been seized by the officers of the United States Government, and carried off to pine in Yankee dungeons. By the terms of the cartel, citizens can only be exchanged for citizens, and in the very nature of the case, we cannot have anything like an equal number of such prisoners with the Yankees. The only non-combatants among the enemy likely to fall into our hands are the teamsters, sutlers, chaplains, camp followers, &c., &c., that we may chance to take upon a battlefield, with now and then some impudent and adventurous member of Congress like Mr. Ely, and but one other class remains to be considered as subjects for exchange with our captured citizens, and this class is composed of the traitorous Unionists, Tennessees and Kentuckians who uphold Lincoln's despotic authority. But foreshore it has not been our custom, upon entering disloyal districts of the Confederate States, to arrest peaceable and unoffending citizens in their beds, and we have no considerable number of persons of the disloyal class to give up for our own brave and unfortunate brethren who have been imprisoned by Andy Johnson, Gen. Lew. Wallace, Gen. Butler, Gen. Pope, and the other minions of the despot at Washington. So that Messrs. Soulé and Mazurian must bide their time; the Nashville clergymen, who feared God and did not fear Andy Johnson, must languish in indefinite confinement; and the six prominent gentlemen of Fredericksburg, who were hurried off at midnight last week, cannot expect to see home or family till the end of the war; while hundreds of others in simili casu, who have already sickened of the heartless cruelty of the North, must yet longer bear it as best they may. The matter is involved in some difficulty, it is true, for if soldiers and officers could be demanded by the Yankees in exchange for citizens, Lincoln would order at once the arrest of the whole population of New-Orleans, Memphis, Nashville, Norfolk, and parts of rural Virginia, now in possession of his troops, to be kept for exchange for the next ten or twenty thousand soldiers taken prisoner by Lee, Jackson, Price, Van Dorn, Morgan or Stuart. Still it does seem a hardship that nothing can be done for these unhappy innocent victims of Northern hatred. As for the members of the Maryland Legislature, and the eminent citizens of Baltimore, who have so long borne with brave hearts and unflinching resolution the imprisonment in Fort Warren, we can only say, all honor to the faithful and true men who keep their loyalty and love and zeal unchilled by the coldness of the Northern dungeon. Whatever fate may betide Maryland, they shall not be forgotten by the South.

"An amusing illustration of the manner in which the Yankee Government is swindled by its contractors has been afforded in the bombardment of Vicksburgh. The officers of the ram Arkansas have sent to the Secretary of the Navy handfuls of glass marbles, such as the boys call 'alleys,' or 'alley taws,' which were thrown out from the Yankee shells, upon the deck of that vessel, and which can be picked up, doubtless, anywhere in the streets of the city. The contractor had bargained to supply shells loaded with iron grape-shot or leaden bullets, but finding glass the cheaper material, by half, he patriotically charged his projectiles with the vitreous sphere, which are nothing like so deadly in their effect, by reason of wanting the momentum acquired by the heavier article. Perhaps the contractor was a Southern sympathizer, on the sly, and purposely made his shells as little mischievous as possible, this being in the interest of his pocket.

"The number of these Southern sympathizers in the North is evidently on the increase. Another series of such victories as those gained by Jackson in the Valley, another excursion of Jack Morgan into Kentucky, another such change of his base line as that effected by McClellan five weeks ago, will inaugurate a considerable peace party in Yankeedom, of which it is just as likely as not that the New-York Herald will be the organ. Last year, such an article as that recently published in the Newark (N. J.) Journal would not have been tolerated by the mob, nor by the Cabinet. The Exchange, of Baltimore, nor the Daily News of New-York, both suppressed by Seward, never spoke out more boldly the language of common sense and real patriotism. Last year, such a speech as that lately made in the treason case of the Gennons in Boston, would have secured for the maker of it lodgings in Fort Warren. Mr. Sumner, who uttered this speech, was once in high favor with the Abolitionists. He came to Richmond as their paid attorney to advocate the cause of Jack Shower before the Legislature of Virginia, was respectfully heard at the bar of the Senate, and returned to get his fee. But he had the boldness, after reaching Boston, to publish a card declaring that the utmost freedom of speech was tolerated in Virginia, the debtorship of the State to the contrary notwithstanding, and that he had been treated with a courtesy which he should not forget, and this lowered Mr. Sumner very much in the opinion of the "friends of freedom." His speech in the Gennon case is significant of a growing discontent with the war at the North. Let us be true to ourselves, let us relax no efforts in our struggle for independence, and we shall ere long secure it without foreign intervention.

"If any one desires to see the freedom of the Press carried to the farthest extreme, and the Confederate States vindicated from any design to trample down the bulwarks of free Government, let him read the leader in the Richmond Examiner of this morning, where President Davis is attacked in terms as bitter, unsparing and denunciatory as the dictionary can furnish.

WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

From the Grenada Appeal, Aug 6.

A highly intelligent gentleman, a planter on the Mississippi River, yesterday informed us that within the last three weeks nearly, if not quite, $1,000,000 worth of negroes have been taken by the Yankees or stolen by them, from Carolton, Carrollton and Greenville. Most of this chattel have been taken by a detachment of cavalry operating along or near the river.

The Yankees have also removed about fifteen hundred bales of cotton in that section, and are now making their way down to Bolivar County, having reached the vicinity of Huspuckane, near Sunflower Landing. Near this locality they were met, on Saturday last, by the Bolivar Troop, a company of the First Regiment Mississippi Cavalry, which had been on a visit to Bolivar County, under command of Lieut.-Col. Morgezaar, and which was at the time on its way back to headquarters.

This troop reached the vicinity of Sunflower Landing on Friday night, and hearing that the Yankees were at T. E. McNair's, engaged in hauling off his cotton, Col. Morgezaar formed an ambuscade early Saturday morning, but the Yankees had already gone off with the last cotton about daylight, carrying with them thirty-five of Mr. McNair's negroes. Col. Morgezaar then fell back about two miles to Judge Torrey's place, setting fire to the cotton there, and detailing men to burn the cotton at other places in that neighborhood. Late in the afternoon, the approach of the Yankees toward Judge Torrey's was made known by the firing of our pickets posted about a mile up the road. The pickets fell back slowly, Col. Morgezaar, meanwhile, awaiting near Judge Torrey's dwelling, in readiness to receive the enemy—the whole troop, however, falling back in the rear, in a skirt of woods, between Judge Torrey's and Col. Fossner's. Here a stand was made, and the Yankees, though numbering at least two hundred and fifty men, (this being the number stationed for two days at Mr. McNair's,) retreated in haste, burning Judge T.'s dwelling-house and gin, and taking off all his negroes then on the place, forty or fifty in number.

None of our men were hurt in this skirmish. The injury to the enemy is not known, except from the report of one of Judge Torrey's negroes, who left the Yankees and came home after a day's absence. He reports that he had seen several wounded—did not know whether any had been killed or not, not whether he saw all the wounded. Stains of blood were, however, afterwards found by our men on the battlefield. On the Monday after this skirmish the Yankees were ascertained to be in force at Mr. Dandale's place, superintending the ginning of his cotton. Col. Morgezaar arranged a surprise, which proved most successful. A dash was made upon them; about twenty were killed and wounded and the remainder brought off. We thought there would be another fight on Tuesday, the day our informant left. But it is impossible for Col. Morgezaar and his small force gallant as they are, to hold them in check long—even with the assistance of the Bolivar and Coahoma guerrillas, about one hundred of whom have joined them. The people of those counties need aid—not one particle has yet been sent. The Bolivar troop, as is understood, was there accidentally. As it is, the Yankees have it pretty much their own way. The people are flying from their homes—some stopping in remote places in the cane, others continuing to the hills.

Cannot our military authorities furnish the people on the river some assistance?

A SOUTHERN LOCOMOTIVE.

From the Atlanta (Ga.) Intelligencer.

The mechanical enterprise and skill of the Macon and Western Railroad repair shop at Macon, we had gratifying evidence of, a day or two ago, in seeing the handsome locomotive Victory on one of the railroad tracks near the depôt in this city, proudly challenging, as it were, the critical examination of our experienced mechanics, while it was commanding the admiration of our citizens; for though they, as well as ourselves, have seen more powerful engines, none have been more bright, or a more beautiful "machine." We learn that the work on this was commenced about eight months ago; that it was done in the Macon and Western Railroad repair shop; and that, with the exception of the bell, safety balance, steam gauge, and water gauge, it was completed in that shop; these, too, would have been made there, but for the fact that they were already on hand. We also learn that the brass mountings of the engine were cast at the foundry of the shop in Macon, by a Macon made mechanic. All this is highly creditable to the machinists of the shop, where the Victory was constructed, for, if we are correctly advised, and we believe we are, there is no locomotive shop in America that does all the work, or finishes all the material, of a locomotive—the brass mountings, wheels, etc., being all purchased for their machines.

The Victory weighs 23 tons, and cost a little over $6,000. She is now being run by Engineer John Harman, and was constructed under the supervision of Mr. E. Checkley, the master machinist of the shop.

We see in this evidence that the South can go on and build her locomotives. She possesses both the mechanical skill and ability to do so. If she will only be energetic and persevere she will achieve another victory over the North as important in its results as victories won upon the battle-field. The machinists of Macon have shown what they can do. Those of Atlanta have already demonstrated their ability to turn out work of the same description. Savannah, if she has not already done so, can with her machinists do the same. Let us then have no more Yankee locomotives after this revolution is ended and our independence won, but let us construct them at home, in Georgia, and thus achieve a victory in mechanics over the world, and especially over the North.

"OUR NAVY."

The Richmond correspondent of the Charleston Mercury says:

"Our navy lifts its head again. We hear of sundry iron-clads at Southern ports 'in a state of forwardness.' The Arkansas remains quiet, because of repairs and the necessity of getting a new crew—that which manned her on her last run being only a temporary crew. May be so; but it is the rule, I believe, for every Confederate vessel and army to keep profoundly quiet for from one to nine months after a fight. A good story is told in this connection about Mr. Mallory. He was showing a sharp letter he had written in regard to the early completion of a ship, and telling pleasantly of a number of such letters he had written before to the same firm. The gentleman to whom he showed the letter said, quietly, 'D—n it, man, quit writing and go down and cuss 'em, cuss 'em. They care nothing for your writing—cuss 'em, cuss 'em.'"

THE BATTLES.

The Richmond correspondent of the Charleston Mercury, writes:

"Mr. Cauchon, Superintendent of the Army Intelligence Office, states that his books show between 11,000 and 12,000 wounded in the battles before Richmond, and thinks the whole number, including those in private houses not reported to him, will be about 12,500. Gen. Lee, I am told, estimates the killed at 2,500. To these must be added a great many who were disabled by exhaustion, want of food and bad water, so that the sum total would amount, perhaps, to 18,000 or 20,000. The percentage of deaths among the wounded has been heavy, owing to the hot weather. I have heard it put at 30 per cent., but this is foolish. No case of amputation above the knee is said to have recovered, but this also I doubt."

ENFORCING THE CONSCRIPTION.

The following order, issued by the post-commander of a school of instruction, of which there are a number in Mississippi, shows how the Confederates are enforcing the conscription:

JACKSON, Miss., July 25.

General Orders, No. 1.—Having been assigned to the command of a camp of instruction located at Brookhaven, Lawrence County, Miss., it is ordered that all persons not exempt from enrollment for service in the armies of the Confederate States, between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five, residing in the following counties, (here follows a list of thirty-eight counties comprising the district belonging to this camp,) report in person on the first Monday in August, 1862, at said camp.

No exemptions will be allowed except on the certificates of physicians holding commissions as Surgeons of the C. S. Army. Persons holding such certificates will report themselves at the camp, said certificates being subject to the approval of the commander.

All refugees or citizens belonging to the Confederacy, and in possession of the enemy, who now are, or may come within the limits of the above-named counties, are included in the above order.

All persons failing to comply with the above order will be arrested and treated as deserters.

Each person will bring with him one blanket or quilt, a tin cup and plate, and from three to five days' rations, according to the distance from the camp.

Transportation on the different railroads will be furnished on application to the conductors.

By order of the Secretary of War,

M. R. CLARK, Major and A. A. G.

VICKSBURGH.

From the Vicksburgh Whig, Aug. 6.

Our city is beginning to exhibit signs of actual life again. The people are flocking back to their homes, stores are being opened, and the pulsations of business have gained a fresh impetus. The houses which were struck by the enemy's shells are being repaired, the streets and sidewalks that were torn up are being made passable, drays and wagons of every description throng our thoroughfares from early morn till dewy eve," and altogether Vicksburgh presents a busy, bustling appearance. Hotels and restaurants are preparing to reopen, bankers are breaking off their cobwebs for business, and soon we expect to be able to tell our readers that the long "beleagured city" is herself again.

SUBSTITUTES.

A Substitute.—I will serve as a substitute in the Confederate service for $6,500, or in the Militia for $1,500. For further information apply to Thomas Allen, Depôt Agent at Duck Hill.

Warran.—Any one wishing to act as a substitute for a man subject to the Conscript Act, will receive the following compensation: a likely negro boy and Five Hundred dollars. Address B., Appeal Office.

CAUGHT.

From the Grenada Appeal.

We are much gratified to learn that a notorious individual, a planter on the river, by the name of Parrozon Powell, who has been bob-robbing with the Yankees since their arrival at Helena, has fallen into the hands of our military authorities, and will be dealt with accordingly, hereafter.

AFFAIRS AT FORTRESS MONROE.

Crowds at Old Point—Another Stampede Among the Sutlers—The Admiral-ship Gone—Commander T. H. Stevens, of the Monitor—Great Secesh Demonstration at Norfolk—Col. E. D. Green, of the Fifth New-Hampshire.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Old Point, Monday, Aug. 18, 1862.

Old Point is literally swarming once more with people—military and civilian—the Hygeia Hotel presenting at night the most ludicrous and comfortless appearance, with mattresses strewed so thickly along all the corridors and passages, that one has to engineer his way to bed, among heads and upturned faces, as carefully as a cat feels its way among the brittle things on a crockery shelf.

The greatest proportion of the crowd is military, and such a blazing exhibition of shoulder-straps—of all colors of the rainbow—perhaps Old Point never beheld before. Where they come from, whither bound, and what officers command them, are facts that I do not intend to make public here, even at this late hour, and in spite of the example of other correspondents—simply, because, in doing so, it is quite impossible to conceive the amount of mischief that may even so be perpetrated.

Among the crowds here are any quantity of army sutlers, veritable stormy petrels, who are sure to be found wherever a tempest is brewing. They can find no resting-place here, however, for the moment they arrive the authorities are at them, and an order, was again read yesterday, warning off all "civilians" from Old Point, which will, no doubt, bring about an immediate stampede.

The Adirondack—United States war-steamer—left us yesterday, under sealed orders. Where she is bound to is, therefore, matter of conjecture; but one thing certain is, that the rebel pirates had better keep clear of Capt. Gansevoort, and his brave officers and crew. The slipping of the Herald through their fingers at Nassau has not only nettled them but roused their appetite, and if they only managed to come "athwart hawse" a rebel craft, let her look out.

While talking of salt-water matters, I am happy to announce that Lieut.-Commander T. H. Stevens, late of the gunboat Mercedesa, and formerly of the Ottawa—Commodore Dutzow's South-Atlantic Squadron—has just been made commander of the Monitor. Promotion never fell upon more worthy shoulders. Commander Stevens is the very model of a sailor—as brave and loyal as he is affable and unassuming. I, in only to be hoped that his superiors will soon be induced to put him at some kind of daring and dashing work that will enable him to do good for his country while distinguishing himself; and I speak by the book when I say that the lion-hearted commander is only longing for such an opportunity. Lieut. Jeffers, of the Monitor, resigned in ill-health.

An event took place at Norfolk yesterday, which many may choose to look upon indifferently, but which all loyal people here regret exceedingly. The Secessionists of Norfolk, who, beyond all question, have been every day becoming more rampant and defiant during the last two or three months, had a grand opportunity yesterday for exhibiting the intensity of their feelings and open sympathy for our enemies.

It was on the occasion of the burial of a private, named Dougherty, of the Third Alabama Regiment. The funeral ceremony took place at the Church of St. Paul's, where Rev. Oxnard officiated, amid a great crowd, chiefly of women, and the body was afterwards conducted to the cemetery, attended by a large concourse of people. It is stated—I know not how truly—that a prominent rebel citizen, having seen Gen. Viele on the subject previously, the latter consented, provided no more than fifty were present. But, instead of fifty, a large concourse of people were collected from the towns of Norfolk and Suffolk, and numbering, at the least estimate, between five and six hundred. The men followed the corpse, and the women lined the sidewalks. The coffin was completely covered with wreaths of flowers, and, at the grave, the ladies standing by threw bouquets in showers over the heads of the people.

Now, anywhere else and under any other circumstances, God forbid that I should utter one word against this feeling of respect shown to the dead; but when we consider the position in which Norfolk stands toward the Union at this moment, and the utter contempt they have ever shown toward Unionists and the Administration of the United States, it does seem to me—and it will be odd if the public do not think so too—that the ends of humanity could have been obtained with much less ostentation and open insult to the duly constituted authorities. Gen. Viele had ordered that the secesh flag should not be publicly displayed on the occasion; but the secesh flag was used, though covertly insinuated among wreaths of flowers.

This is the third time within one month—but never before on so large a scale—that a similar exhibition has taken place. That such displays—no matter how good or humane the intent—have the effect of encouraging disloyalty and crushing out entirely whatever Union feeling is existing no man in his senses can doubt; and I am informed by parties well acquainted with Norfolk and on whose word I can rely, that in that large crowd were many Unionists, drawn there, because on such an occasion to have remained away would have made them marked men, perhaps doomed ones, in the event of the rebels ever returning. Such latitude may be all very right in the eyes of what some people call "conservatism" but conservatives am ong us would do well to put this question to themselves: Had a Union private died in Richmond would the authorities there have permitted the Unionists of that city to make any such display at his grave? If not, why this difference? What right (the people indignantly ask) have our public servants to be constantly showering kindnesses and benefits upon disloyal people, who return them only with hatred and contempt, and deny the same advants gee to us?

The strange vicissitudes of war have just brought me in contact with an old member of the Cincinnati and New-York Press, (the Times of both those cities,) Col. E. D. Cross, of the Fifth New-Hampshire, which gallantly bore the brunt of the battle at Fair Oaks. The Colonel was badly wounded in the thigh, had to return home, and is now on his way to rejoin his regiment. His numerous friends both in New-York and Cincinnati will be glad to hear that, with the exception of a lingering pain from his wound, the Colonel is quite well, and ready for fresh work.

Drafting Negroes.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The editorial in the Times of yesterday, headed "Negro Brigades through a Needle's Eye," appears to me to be neither fair nor well founded in facts. Instead of Gov. Andraw having overstrained a point or taken advantage of some verbal inaccuracy, as I understand the matter, he has done only what it was plainly his imperative duty to do, and the duty also of the Governor of every other State to do, and what it was furthermore the imperative duty of the President to require them to do.

In saying this, I assume that the reports which I have seen of the law passed at the last session of Congress, under which this draft must be made, are correct, if not, I may be mistaken; but the law as I have read it expressly declares that "the enrollment of the Militia shall in all cases include all able-bodied male citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five." The word "white" is not inserted, nor omitted, I apprehend, by mistake, but purposely. And citizens of eighteen does not mean voters even, but must be understood in the liberal sense of subjects of the Government whom it may lawfully command.

Has not then every man who is liable to be drafted a right to demand of President Lincoln, in the name of justice and of law, that the enrollment shall include colored subjects or citizens as well as white? Is there any way for him to avoid this without being grossly recreant to law and duty unless he is ready to indorse the sham Dred Scott decision and deny that a colored man, a negro, if you please, can be a citizen of this nation, although the foundation of its Government and Constitution is the legal equality of all its subjects.

But is President Lincoln willing to thus stultify himself and deny his former doctrines. Will he stand up boldly, face to face, before the people of this land, and take that Pro-Slavery decision as authority and law? Will he assert with Wheeling and the like that this is "white man's land," and that negroes under the Constitution can be made "citizens" not even "people?" Will he maintain that the colored citizens of Rhode-Island, or of any other State, are not also citizens of the Union?

I can conceive that a citizen of the United States, under some circumstances, might not be a citizen of any State in such wise as to be entitled to vote in purely State matters, but it is absurd, to my mind, to say that a man may be a citizen of a State, and yet not of the nation. And surely a person who would be a citizen with a white skin, will be a citizen, for the purposes of this act, whatever may be the color of his skin. A law making an alien a citizen of a State, under conditions precluding or omitting his national citizenship, must be unconstitutional. The assumption that men of African descent are not equal in law to others, and cannot be citizens under our national Constitution, and the attempt, in the Dred Scott case, to foist this doctrine into the law of the land as an irrepealable interpretation, is a part, and no unimportant part, of the Pro-Slavery abominations and encroachments which called the Republican party into existence, and in the conflict led to the election of President Lincoln on the one hand as leader, and to the rebellion under Jeff. Davis, as leader on the other.

I ask, then, is our Republican President ready to assert that a negro in whose case every condition entitles him to full national citizenship, except his color or the quality of his blood, cannot get over this disability or be a citizen, and possess a citizen's privileges and rights. If not, can he nullify this positive law, or avoid enrolling the colored citizens for the coming draft?

As a citizen, I demand the faithful execution of that law. I am tired and ashamed of the national injustice towards the blacks which is constantly practiced and boldly advocated. No thinking man, I apprehend, can in his conscience and in truth believe that an exclusion of men other wise qualified, from citizenship, simply on account of color, is either just, or noble, or constitutional. Nor do such men in sincere truth believe that the State laws, of late enacted, excluding negroes and imposing various disabilities and prohibitions on account of color, are constitutional, or of any legal validity at all. These States think it expedient for them, and so determine to have it treated as constitutional. But all these wrongs and base violations of our Constitution must be done away before we shall stand as a nation upon safe and immovable ground. It is in vain to take those lies in our right hand, or attempt to put them at true stones in our building—we must sooner or later remove them, or truth and right will renounce us. So long as this wrong to the whole colored race continues (to be the prevailing practice of the nation, as long, I feel assured, will the displeasure and the pursuing and heavy judgments of God rest upon us.

LOYALTY IN OLD PUTNAM.

Enthusiastic Meeting at Lake Mahopac—Address by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Others.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Lake Mahopac, Tuesday, Aug. 19, 1862.

On Saturday last an enthusiastic war meeting, or rendezvous, was held in Pine Grove, on the margin of the lake, near the principal hotels, which are this season crowded with guests. Throughout this county of Putnam there are many old Democrats who grew about the Republicans causing the war, and who say the Republicans should put it down, and all that sort of gammon, which acts as a wet blanket on the enlistments of the young and patriotic. This class has been sustained to some extent by a few of the Summer sojourners, who, with shrugs and winks, give out the idea that those who entertain such sentiments are not far wrong—not open sympathizers with rebellion, you will perceive, but those who, having scraped together a "few thousands," and who assume a "loud manner" in consequence—who are passive, inactive—who support Fourth-avenue clergymen of doubtful loyalty—who, when a war meeting is held, suddenly recollect sweet spots in which to have a picnic—who defer their return until such meeting is over—who fail to lend the aid of their presence to a gathering of the people—who, with lofty air, in hotel drawing-rooms, pronounce such gatherings "vulgar, you know," and wonder at the taste that indulges in "that sort of thing"—who are on Union Committees in town but not in the country.

We have among us many loyal gentlemen, earnest men, who fight the battles of the Republic socially, and who are ready when the draft calls to enter the ranks and do so physically. Well, these true men, sustained and abetted by sympathetic women, assisted by Mr. Francis, a young clergyman, stationed at the lake, were the principal getters up of the meeting in this part of "Old Put." The meeting showed how responsive the heart of the people beats to the air of the Union when beyond the influence of the "croakers"—how cheerfully they enroll themselves for the suppression of this most infamous rebellion.

The meeting was opened with a prayer, followed by a capital speech, effectually delivered by Rev. Mr. Francis. Songs of a patriotic character were sung, and cheers given for "Abram," McClellan and the Union.

The organization was perfected by the selection of the following gentlemen as officers: President, Leonard D. Clute; Vice-Presidents, Lambert Suydam, John Bridge, Josiah O. Low, Adam W. Spies, Chauncey R. Weeks, Ambrose Ryder, George Luddington, Barton Smith, Franklin Hyatt; Secretaries, William H. Lee, Walter T. Hatch, Wm. H. Scott, Pierre Humbert, John G. Miller; Treasurer, Lewis Ballard.

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Beecher was then introduced, and said:

I am glad to be called here, to-day, fellow-citizens, to attend a meeting of the people—meetings more powerful than legislatures or Congress—glad to think that such meetings are taking place in every town and hamlet throughout our loyal land, and that the heart of the people are in these gatherings. For my part, whenever, as now, I find myself in the midst of such a one, I have an ideal of what I should wish it to be—what our brave boys on the Potomac would wish to have it—an honest uprising of the people in their might and indignation. As you know, every State has given, and has given freely, the young and active, our sons and brothers, and when they are borne down, down in this fearful strife, there are others to supply their place, others to follow, until finally, if need be, the gray-haired sire will shoulder his musket and fight the battle for his children's inheritance—take his part in the war at once the most infamous and servile, but which must be waged for the maintenance of the best Government the sun ever shone upon.

War, my friends, is a dreadful thing—death is a dreadful thing—but there is something worse than death, worse than war, and that is Slavery; and since between these two we must choose, let it be the lesser evil. If this war must be one of extermination, let it be prosecuted like thunder, be as effectual as lightning. The fearful alternative has been forced upon us—it was not of our choosing; but its sett

Opium as a Substitute for Lint in Gunshot and Other Suppurating Wounds.

To the Editor of the American Medical Times:

I have for many years past been in the habit of using picked oakum, in all cases of suppurating wounds, particularly in compound fracture with opened joints, where the suppuration is excessive. The great number of gunshot wounds now in Belleview Hospital, where I was at entirely to the exclusion of lint, has furnished an opportunity for a number of army surgeons to examine its advantages, and they have requested me to make the subject more generally known to the profession through the medium of your valuable medical journal.

One of the objects of lint applied to a suppurating wound, is to absorb the discharge; now, if you make the lint is composed either entirely or in greater part of cotton, it acts more like a tampon, or a retainer of the secretions, than as an absorber.

If you will take a bale of cotton and immerse it in the river for one month, or even longer, and then remove it, you will find on opening it that the cotton in the centre of the bale is perfectly dry, thus proving that it cannot be soaked through any great thickness, or that it will not absorb moisture. So, when placed over a suppurating wound and left for some hours, it will be found perfectly dry except at the point of contact; acting, in fact, like a bung in a barrel, or a cork in a bottle—to prevent the escape of the pus—which necessarily burrows in different directions, thus forming extensive sinuses, and adding great to the danger of the patient; and, when removed, the pus will gush out in large quantities. Now, if you place picked oakum over these same wounds, you will find after the same number of hours, that the oakum is perfectly saturated with pus, and the wound itself almost perfectly dry and clean—the oakum acting like a syphon, and discharging the contents of the abscess by capillary attraction.

It is necessary to place under the wound a piece of India-rubber cloth, or oiled muslin, for the sake of cleanliness; and in case of much inflammation, by simply wetting the oakum in cold water, and wrapping the oiled muslin around the limb or wounded part so as to exclude the air, you have at once the easiest and most comfortable poultice that can be applied to it. In gunshot wounds, which go through and through a limb, particularly if made with the "Minie ball," the whirl or screw of the ball entangles in its thread the muscular fibres and cellular tissue, and separates them from their attachments for a long distance from the real track of the ball itself.

As the muscle and tegumentary tissues are more freely supplied with blood-vessels than the fat and cellular tissues, the consequence is that they begin to granulate much more readily than those other tissues, and will thus often close up the wound, and prevent the free escape of pus, before those parts have perfectly healed, and thus lead to the formation of extensive secondary abscesses. I, therefore, in all cases where no blood-vessels prevent it, pass an eyed probe through the wound and draw through it a few fibres of the oakum or tarred rope, which keeps it perfectly free, and the tar is a very excellent antiseptic, and removes all unpleasant odor.

A few fresh fibres are, twisted on the end of the seton at every dressing, and drawn into the wound, and the soiled pieces cut off and removed with the dressings.

Another great advantage which the oakum possesses over lint, which in these times of heavy taxation is not to be overlooked, is its cheapness. Lint at the time of the present time costs from $1 25 to $1 35 per pound, whereas the finest picked oakum can be obtained at the "Empire Oakum Works," No. 149 West Thirty-ninth-street, for ten cents per pound. And if it were universally adopted in the army it would save many thousands of dollars to the Government, and I confidently believe the life of many a soldier. And no surgeon who has once used it will ever resort to lint again—particularly if the lint is made of cotton.

Yours, etc., LEWIS A. SAYRE, M. D.,
Surgeon to Bellevue Hospital, etc.

FESTIVAL OF THE YOUNG MEN'S LITERARY AND SOCIAL UNION AT JONES' WOOD—SPEECHES OF GENS. BURNSIDE AND HON. J. D. TOWNSEND.

The festival conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Literary and Social Union, in aid of sick and wounded soldiers, took place yesterday at Jones' Wood. There was a very large audience, who greeted the speeches with much enthusiasm. The first address was by Brig.-Gen. Burnsides, who spoke substantially as follows:

SPEECH OF GEN. BURNSIDE.

On the 4th day of July, 1776, civil and religious liberty were born into the world and baptized by the name of the United States of America. Their mission was the enfranchisement of the race, and all forms of bondage were decreed to fall before their onward march of civilization, christianity and freedom. For a period of eighty-three years those great principles have been developing themselves in the unexampled prosperity and happiness of the American people, and beneath their care a nation has sprung into existence whose span grasped two oceans and as many zones. An inconsiderable colonial existence has been exchanged for a grandeur nationality, and an empire has taken the place of a struggling and impoverished people. Men of every stripe and creed have found a home and shelter beneath the Constitution formed and adopted as the palladium of freedom. The history of such an epoch has been what might be expected from it. The country it produced has been the pride of its own people and the marvel of all others.

On the 11th of April, 1861, treason, in its most abhorrent form, was born into the world, and stole the name of secession. It stigmatized its advent by an act of contradiction and dishonesty. It raised a parricidal hand against the life of free institutions and popular governments, and to-day sedulously and wickedly contriving how it may most surely subvert and destroy the democratic system that a majorities shall govern. For this purpose it is in arms against established authority, and insolently demands that a great Republic shall be overthrown, and that upon its appalling ruin despotism shall wield an unchallenged sceptre. This is the real issue of the hour. It is a trend between aristocracy and democracy, between the rights of the many and the privileges of the few, between Liberty and Slavery. Stripped of mere verbiage, this is the question in controversy.

We are charged with the duty of determining how the contest shall eventuate. No more sacred obligation ever fell to the lot of men. As we determine it, the world knows "hitherto" to the darkness of the night time and feudal ages, or forward into the pure atmosphere of liberty, regulated by intelligence and [illegible]

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

FIVE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS ESCHEATED BY A NEW-YORK CLERK.—A case of embezzlement of considerable interest, owing in part to the amount involved, was brought before Justice BEAMAN yesterday afternoon at the Lower Police Court. The offender is a young Scotchman, aged 25 years, named CHARLES W. BANKS. At the time of the commission of the offence he was in the employ of Mr. COENRIES DE LAMARES, iron merchant in West Fifteenth-street. Last Monday his employer handed him a check upon the New-York County Bank for the sum of $3,500, and also another check for $2,000, all of which BANKS was requested to draw and return to his employer. The day passed, and the clerk did not return. On Tuesday, BANKS not having made his appearance, the employer began to grow uneasy about his money, and he therefore dispatched Mr. FAYE, his foreman, in pursuit of the delinquent clerk. The latter was traced to Tarrytown, Nyack and Fishkill, on the Hudson. At the last-named place it was found that at a late hour on Tuesday evening, BANKS had taken the cars of the New-York and Erie Railroad for the West. Mr. FAYE continued his pursuit, and at Middletown, in Orange County, where the purser stopped to make inquiries, the absconding clerk was found secreted in an upper room of a hotel. He was immediately taken into custody by Constable ADAMS of Middletown, and upon a search of his person no effects being made, the sum of $4,705 was found, the ignis fatuus in the bills of the New-York County Bank. Yesterday he was brought to New-York, and after a preliminary hearing before Justice BEAMAN, he was committed to the Tombs in default of $5,000 bail. He has confessed his guilt, and says that it is the first time that he has been guilty of the commission of any crime. After he had obtained the money from the bank, and before leaving the City, he changed his clothing, and on a red shirt and military cap and boots, and had his hair and whiskers cut off quite close. The unfortunate young man had been about two years with Mr. DE LAMARES, and hitherto, so far as is known, his reputation has been good. He says that after he left the City he became so nervous, bewildered and conscience-stricken that he did not know what course to pursue. He therefore wandered around from place to place upon the Hudson and vicinity, until he was captured.

FIRE IN WEST THIRTY-THIRD-STREET.—About 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, the carpenter shop of LOUIS LANE, in the rear of No. 69 West Thirty-third-street, took fire and was totally destroyed. Damage to stock and building, $800. No insurance. The front dwelling-house, occupied by F. S. CHASIN and owned by Mr. LANE, was damaged $500. No insurance. Mr. CHASIN's damage on furniture is about $400. No insurance. The shop of CHARLES RIVERS, staircase-builder, adjoining the shop of Mr. LANE, was also destroyed, together with a large quantity of wood stock. Damage, $1,200. No insurance. Mr. RIVERS's loss on furniture in front building No. 67 is $150. The building was damaged $200. Insured for $3,000 in the Hylewort Insurance Company. Front building No. 91, owned by Mrs. RICE, was damaged $100. Insured. Damage to furniture, $250; not insured. Mrs. JANE PLUNGUNIS occupied the first floor as a grocery and dwelling. Damage by water, $200. Insured for $700 in the Greenwich Insurance Company. The two-story frame building rear of No. 85, owned by FRANK GARDE, was damaged $600. Insured. Damage to furniture, $200. It is said that some children had been playing with matches in the carpenter-shop, and had dropped some of them among the shavings. The flames spread rapidly, and did fair at one time to sweep through the block.

ARREST ON A CHARGE OF TREASON.—A resident of Harlem, named THOMAS D. NAYES, was arrested yesterday by Officer DEVEON, of the Twelfth Precinct, upon the complaint of Mr. CHAS. S. FITZHUGH, who made an affidavit to the effect that NAYES had said "that any person enlisting at this time was very foolish, and if the Government could not put any but Abolitionists in power it had better give up." FITZHUGH further testifies that the accused is in constant communication with Southern rebels, and that the course which he has for some time pursued has greatly tended to prevent men from enlisting. Provost-Marshal KNAPP examined the prisoner for further examination. A German soldier, named FRANZ SCHWEYER, was arrested in Harlem, at the Twenty-seventh Precinct station-house, charged with doing all in his power to prevent enlistments. He was also detained at Police Headquarters.

ADMITTED TO PROBATE.—The following wills were on Tuesday admitted to probate: The will of Capt. James M. Wilson, late of Gen. Kearney's Staff, killed at the battle of Williamsburgh; the wills of Andrew Buchanan, George Hall, Michael Coffey, Robert Livingston, Philip Vallenar, William Whitney and Rosine Glotz, alias Maria Moser. The will of William A Walker was rejected, on ground of defect in execution.

SALE OF PRIZE COTTON.—Eight hundred bales of cotton, the cargo of the prize vessels Magnolia and Andrewita, were sold at auction, Tuesday, by order of the United States Marshal, and realized the sum of $166,209 62.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

The Myrtle-avenue Homicide—Coroner's Inquest and Verdict of the Jury—The Prisoner Held to Await the Action of the Grand Jury.

Coroner MORRIS held an inquest on Tuesday upon the body of CHARLES STEVENS, who was killed in an affray in an oyster saloon on the corner of Myrtle-avenue and Pearl-street, on Monday night, by the proprietor, JOHN DALEY. It appears that the deceased and a companion named EDWARD O'CONNER entered the saloon about 11 o'clock and called for some oysters. One of the party, as alleged, placed the catsup bottle in the butter-dish, which incensed the proprietor, and he ordered them out. O'CONNER went quietly, but STEVENS hesitated, and a quarrel ensued, when DALEY struck him two blows, causing him to fall upon the steps with his head, and resulted in almost instant death. The following is the evidence:

Edward O'Conner sworn—I reside at No. 98 Function-street; am a carpenter by trade; was in company last night with Charles Stevens from six till half past nine P. M.; we went into the cigar-store saloon on the corner of Pearl-street and Myrtle-avenue, to get some oysters in a quiet manner, and were waited upon by the man here under arrest; Mr. Stevens in eating his cabbage dropped the catsup-bottle on the butter-plate, and the proprietor remonstrated with him for setting the table-cloth; Mr. Stevens replied that he was insulted by the remarks of Mr. Daley, and then Daley ordered us to go out; Stevens replied that it was too bad, as the stews would be wasted; Daley replied that he did not want such customers; they then went toward the door; I passed out ahead of Stevens; I noticed the latter on the steps and turning round noticed that Daley and Stevens were conversing; I could not tell whether they were angry or not; Stevens asked Daley if he must go out? "yes; d— quick," replied Daley; I saw Stevens fall down at this time; Stevens was standing on the floor step of the passage way; I did not see any resistance offered by Stevens; I then went for a police officer and was absent about ten minutes, and on returning found Stevens still lying where he fell; between the time of quitting work and the time of the accident, Stevens drank three times in New-York of brandy; we came to Brooklyn and he drank one brandy smash; we also drank two glasses of bier in Willoughby-street; I only drank one glass of brandy smash and two glasses of beer; I remember distinctly all that transpired; I have been acquainted with Stevens about two years and worked with him; he was a very quiet man; I never saw him in a quarrel before; deceased did not speak after my return from the Police Station; I noticed some blood on his forehead; he did not appear to be intoxicated; he was in good humor; I did not see any reason for Daley's hard.

Wm. C. Scott, sworn—I reside at No. 3 Hampden-street; am a builder; was in the oyster saloon of Mr. Daley about ten or ten and a half o'clock P. M. last night; heard an altercation between Daley and the last witness, O'Conner; deceased, Mr. Stevens, also entered into the altercation with Daley; my attention was first directed to the parties by hearing Mr. Daley request them to go out; Mr. Daley said, "You had better go out; I will lose the stews;" the occasion of the trouble was Mr. Daley's complaining that the parties had soiled his table with butter; Mr. Daley then walked into the back room; the last witness told Mr. Daley that he felt insulted at what he said; do not recollect what the man was doing at the time; the last witness stepped to the door, and returning, told Daley he would advise him if he would put him out; during the time I did not notice Stevens saying or doing anything; Mr. Daley requested O'Conner to call quietly out but failing, I put my hands on O'Conner's back and gently pushed; he walked from the door; the window appeared to be under the influence of liquor and Daley had not sufficient force to put him out; I then saw Stevens walk toward mahogany; he went quietly up the gas door; Stevens then said to Daley, "I suppose you want me to go out;" Daley said, "Yes;" deceased then said, "You will have to put me out;" Stevens was at this time about six feet from the door, when Daley put his hands on his shoulder to put him out; he pushed him with Stevens; reached the threshold of the door; deceased then mounted three or four steps and returned to the door-step; a few words with the foot; Stevens placed himself in a threatening attitude, with both fists clenched and raised; at this time I was sitting at the first table; my face toward the door; I cannot say if both sides of the door opened; my impression is, that they did; I then saw Daley strike Stevens two blows with the right hand and once with the left; deceased staggered back and fell on the steps; some deceased then arose and left; Mr. Daley did not speak; I saw the altercation; deceased [illegible]

LAW REPORTS.

Repeal of Subpœnas; Statute Revives a Prior One.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Sarsfield vs. Van Vaughten et al.—The former Court of Chancery never entertained an action where the matter in dispute did not exceed $50. This practice obtained by virtue of its inherent power, and without the express sanction of any act of the Legislature. The latter by its silence, relinquished the power, and never attempted to intermeddle with it until it provided in the Revised Statutes, that the Court of Chancery should dismiss every suit where the matter in dispute does not exceed the value of $100. The only effect of this, was to enlarge the amount from $50 to $100. This provision of the Revised Statutes was repealed by the Legislature during the last session, the effect of which was to reduce the amount again from $100 to $50. It is no respect interferes with the power which the Court of Chancery for so long a period exercised on this subject. It is an ancient and well-established principle that if a statute which repeals or modifies another statute, or a rule, is itself subsequently repealed, the first statute or rule is thereby revived, without any formal words for that purpose. This Court as the successor of the Court of Chancery possesses all its powers, and I think convenience requires that the rule in question should be preserved.

The motion to dismiss the complaint is granted, without costs of action or motion.

The Stock Exchange was adversely influenced early in the day by some rather unfavorable news. War news not [illegible]

[illegible]

There were partially [illegible] in Government securities, which, being first called at the Board, are looked to as the standard of political confidence. The whole market on the first dealings of the morning was [illegible] cent. lower than the best prices of yesterday. But a little later in the day it was discovered that no news had come over the wires of any nature, and that Government Stocks had fallen on an exaggerated rumor that the Treasury was in the market for a new loan. The whole foundation for this rumor was the sale by Mr. CUSHING, the Sub-Treasurer, under the authority of Secretary CHASE, of $3,000,000 7.30 ₩ cent. Treasury Bonds, at 104½ ₩ cent. and interest to the house of TOWNSEND BROTHERS, and other Money Brokers on the Street. When this fact was ascertained, the market gradually recovered, and prices on the Street, between the sessions of the Board, were [illegible] ₩ cent. higher than on the printed sales.

The explanation of the sale of 7.30 ₩ cents is that the Treasury Department is running short of U. S. Notes of the issue of Feb. 25, and that the plates and printing for the new issue of July 31 are somewhat behindhand. The inducement to the sale is that 104½ ₩ cent. on a two-year security, at 7.30 ₩ cent., will cost the Government no more than about 5 ₩ cent. per annum, independent of the premium on the Gold which it will have to pay the interest. At the same time, we must believe that the buyers at this rate have the best of the bargain, as besides the consideration of the premium on the half-yearly interest payable in Gold, the Bonds are convertible into the longest 6 ₩ cent. Stock of the Government, redeemable for twenty years.

The Brokers who had an inkling of the negotiation referred to, but without stopping to inquire into the rate, went into the Board and sold down the 7.30 ₩ cents, to 104½@104 ₩ cent., and the 6 ₩ cents. of 1881 to 100¾ ₩ cent. It is said that some of them knew the rate, confidentially, and, from a singular sense of patriotism, used this method of beating it down on the Stock Exchange.

At the Second Board prices for the Railway Stocks were at first decidedly firm, and a large business was done, but soon after the adjournment at 3 o'clock, a rumor obtained currency of the retreat or repulse of Gen. POPE, and prices fell back again [illegible] ₩ cent. A heavy purchaser of Michigan Southern old stock was made at 50 ₩ cent. Later in the afternoon on the Street, the market was dull on the rumor referred to, although it was not generally believed up to 4 o'clock. It was circulated on the authority of private telegraphic dispatches, according to the story in the Stock Exchange. The following were about the latest figures:

With two or three exceptions, the Railway Mortgages continued firm, and some of them further advanced to-day. The principal description with Michigan Southern Second Mortgage, which suddenly rose to 91, yesterday, as suddenly returned to 87 ₩ cent. this morning. The New-York Central 6 ₩ cents. were wanted at 100 ₩ cent., the highest price, we believe, ever bid for them. The Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Mortgages were higher than yesterday. The Toledo rose to 85 ₩ cent.

The event in the Money market to-day is the sale of $3,000,000 of United States Treasury 7.30 ₩ cent. Bonds at 104½ ₩ cent. Whether this is the exact net price realized by the Government or not, we are unable to say, as hints were indulged on the Street that a fractional abatement or some other indirect advantage had been allowed to the takers after the Stock Exchange price was made at 104 ₩ cent.

P. S.—Since the foregoing was written we learn that the net price is made to the takers 104 ₩ cent., and accumulated interest to the day of paying in the Money to the Sub-Treasury. If the Secretary needed further experience, after his previous negotiations of a private nature, in Wall-street, to satisfy him of the impolicy of partial sales of his securities, without public notice, he surely has it to-day.

Money in the open market continues easy at 4@5 per cent. The Deposits at Bank are up to $144,000,000. The Specie line is $35,000,000. Gold opened this morning at 115¼@115½. There was nothing done at the Second Board. The price left off 115¼@115½. Exchange is a fraction higher on the asking price with the Bankers. Not much done since the Boston steamer mail.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The Army of the Potomac, as will be seen by our correspondence, has all arrived in the vicinity of Fortress Monroe, and at last accounts was making rapid preparations for departure to its new field of operations—wherever that may be. In connection with this announcement we give the following, from the Hartford Post of yesterday, for what it is worth: "We have private but almost and reliable information that Gen. McClellan will resign the command of the Army of the Potomac as soon as the new change of position is effected. The visit of the President to the Peninsula, soon after the battle-week, is said to have had connection with this event."

According to the Cincinnati Commercial, the rebels are advancing in Kentucky with startling rapidity. It is evident that inroads are being made into that State vastly more important than the Morgan raid. A dispatch from Lexington says 3,000 rebel cavalry were on Monday night within 25 miles of that city. The official dispatches also show that the danger is imminent.

A rumor prevails at Nashville that Chattanooga, Tenn., has been evacuated by the rebels, who are making movements toward Knoxville and Richmond. There is reported to be great activity at Nashville in military affairs, and troops are arriving rapidly.

The Government, in accordance with the recommendation of Hon. Reverdy Johnson, it is understood has determined to return to the Consul of the Netherlands at New-Orleans the $800,000 seized by Gen. Butler; also the $716,000 taken from the French Consul. It is also decided to relinquish a large amount of sugar and other merchandise taken from Greek, British and other foreign merchants, subject to the decision of the Government.

There is believed to be no sufficient foundation for the rumor that Gen. Butler is to be superseded at New-Orleans by Gen. Dix, and that Hon. Reverdy Johnson is to be made Provisional Governor of Louisiana.

A cavalry expedition from New-Madrid, Mo., a day or two ago, attacked a rebel camp on White Oak Ridge, and broke it up. Four of the enemy were killed and nineteen taken prisoners, including three Captains. Twenty-seven horses were also captured, and about a hundred stand of arms.

The Washington Star furnishes the following explanation of the reason why Gen. Banks was not reinforced during the battle of Cedar Mountain: "Gen. Banks did not dream that he was contending with an enemy in force equal to his own. At 5½ P. M. he sent a dispatch, to the effect that he was driving the enemy before him. At 6 P. M., when his troops essayed their terrific charge upon the rebel batteries, their infantry response from the cover of woods and thick under-brush first revealed their overwhelming strength to Gen. Banks, who then dispatched a messenger to the rear to notify Gen Pope of the fact. Then it was that Ricketts was ordered to push forward with all possible rapidity to his assistance. The truth is, Gen. McDowell's corps was in the best possible position to serve any emergency, and would have been in the fight beyond peradventure, had the enemy not contrived to conceal from Gen. Banks and his whole corps d'armée his real strength, until an hour too late to permit Ricketts to be ordered up in time to arrive on the field before nightfall put an end to the engagement for the time being. None others than the officers actually engaged in the front could possibly know the necessity for reinforcements. Their failure to appreciate the fact, therefore, and that alone, was the cause of the omission to reinforce them are the engagement was substantially over."

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamer Champion arrived at this port last night, from Aspinwall on the 11th inst. She was delayed six days at Aspinwall, waiting for the arrival of the Golden Gate at Panama. She brings about $31,000 in specie from Aspinwall, and but few passengers. Affairs at Panama remain quiet. Accounts from Bogota to the 16th ult. represent the cause of Mosquera as progressing favorably. The Liberals appear to be on the eve of establishing themselves permanently as the ruling party in the republic of Columbia. The Champion brings later news from Central and South America, but nothing of special importance, politically. The principal intelligence from Peru relates to the loss of the British steamer Lima, which occurred on the 11th of July. She struck upon a reef off the Lagunas Islands, some fifty-five miles southward of Ostaje.

The Committees of the Common Council and others engaged in preparation for the reception of Gen. Corcoran, have at length agreed upon a programme for the pageant of Friday next. It promises to be one of the most imposing ever witnessed in this City of pomps and festivals. We allude to it specially, and publish the programme in appropriate columns.

The fair at Jones' Woods yesterday for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers, under the auspices of the Young Men's Literary and Social Union Club, was quite a success. Speeches were made by Gen. Butterfield and Hon. J. P. Townsend. Several thousand people attended during the day and evening, and several hundred dollars were realized for the benevolent cause.

The latest advices from San Francisco express the fears of smuggling on the Pacific lost on the Pacific Coast.

The Ironsides has not yet left Philadelphia, though she may sail to-day. The Water Witch and Prometheus are both to act as her convoy.

The United States ship Jas and the sloop-of-war Cumberland sailed from Boston on Monday. The latter goes to Port Royal.

Another heavy day's work was done on the Stock Exchange yesterday, but at an abatement from the extreme prices of Tuesday, of 1@1½ per cent. on Government Securities and Railway Shares. Late in the afternoon the market was dull, on unfavorable rumors from our army in Virginia. Gold 115¼; Bills on London, 127½. The Treasury Department sold $3,000,000 of 7.30 per cent. Treasury Bonds, at 104 per cent. and interest accumulated, in Wall-street yesterday.

Flour was depressed, and a trifle lower, yesterday. Wheat was less sought after, and was heavy. A fair business was transacted in Corn, but at rather easier rates. Cotton was in more demand, at uniform quotations. Hay, Oils, Tallow and Tobacco, were in request. Pork was more active, and was firmer. Lard and Beef were unaltered. A moderate inquiry prevailed for Hops, Sugars, Molasses and Whisky. The Freight engagements were limited.

Peninsular Strategy of the Rebels.

One of the great masters of the military art has told us that "the transition from the defensive to the offensive is one of the most difficult and delicate operations of war." The rebels have proved the truth of this maxim in the recent events of the Peninsular campaign. For, contrary to what is usual when an army retreats before superior numbers, the sole immediate result achieved by the much-vaunted seven days' fighting of June and July last was that the rebel loss in killed and wounded fell but little below our own, while they were forced to give up their new offensive attitude, to postpone indefinitely their projected raid on Washington, and to forego the hopeful schemes for levying contributions on the Northern cities, which they had announced with all the vain-glorious confidence of reckless and needy marauders.

After massing almost the whole of their available forces from the entire South, and hurling them upon a part of our dispirited regiments who were wasting with disease, weary of inactivity, and cut off from all effective coöperation with other sections of our army, they had the satisfaction of finding themselves once more on the defensive, having accomplished nothing more by their long preparations and immense efforts, than to cause the division which they had attacked to assume a stronger and more eligible position, where, for six weeks, it has threatened the rebel Capital, while itself was left unassailed. For the rebels, though boasting of their victories, never once ventured within striking distance, but on the contrary, if we may believe their newspapers, have been tormented with daily fears that the General they claimed to have beaten meditated an immediate movement on Richmond.

With regard to our own troops, the change of base was equally opportune and advantageous. For now they were compactly and conveniently posted, instead of being scattered and exposed. The camp was in a healthy instead of a malarious region. Our men had breathing time and were speedily recruited and refreshed. And finally, when the enemy, in a fever of apprehension, believed that we were on the eve of marching against him, our whole corps d'armée being in complete readiness to take the field, had already effected a junction with those of Burnside and Pope; and, as if by magic, Harrison's Landing was evacuated in the face of a vigilant and outnumbering foe. Without firing a gun or losing a man, our army advanced to its new camping ground, and improved in efficiency and morale, surrounded by reinforcements and supplies, impatiently awaits orders to march, as we trust, to great, glorious and speedy victories.

Thus the rebels have secured no advantage, but have, on the contrary, received a salutary lesson from their abortive attempt to assume the offensive, and from their demonstrations with that view on the Peninsula. They have set free an isolated division of our army, caused the concentration of our available forces in the field, and hastened the fall of Richmond,—or, at least, they have let slip the golden moment in which a Napoleon might have changed the aspect of the war, and converted a temporary success into a decisive victory.

The Metropolitan Guards.—It was a capital idea, first suggested by Secretary Seward, to take advantage of the Police organization for the purpose of raising a regiment in this City. It is obvious, at a glance, what an admirable ready-made engine of recruiting the Police force is eligible to be turned into. Each patrolman becomes a recruiting sergeant, each station-house a recruiting station; and thus at one stroke the Government obtains in this City alone a couple of thousand active efficient enlisting officers and forty or fifty rendezvous for recruits, and all, too, without the expenditure of a dollar. The matter, however, was not allowed to remain a mere idea, but steps were immediately taken to give it practical effect. The success has already been so great that not only is one regiment now under formation, but a second one has been begun, and both are filling up with great rapidity. These regiments, to be called the Metropolitan Guards, have their rendezvous, the one on Riker's Island and the other on Staten Island; and the first already counts 500, while the second has 300 men on its muster-roll. Indeed, so briskly is the business going on that it is now quite certain that a full brigade of Metropolitan Guards, composed of first-rate fighting material will be formed and ready for marching orders before the 1st of September.

The really admirable feature of this admirable plan, however, is that the Police organization is to be made available not only for raising the men but for providing for the support of the families of the volunteers during their absence. The uncertainty as to this vital matter is, as is well known, the great obstacle to enlistments in our large cities. The plan adopted by the Police is to obtain subscriptions from all who are willing to contribute, and so considerable a fund has already been raised in this way especially by small contributions from the working classes, that there is little fear that they will be able to provide for the families of all who join the Metropolitan Guards. It was at first contemplated to do this only for the families of members of the Police force, who form a large element of one of the regiments; but the subscriptions have been, as we said, so encouraging, that it is designed to extend the benefit to all. Money could not possibly be better spent, than by swelling a fund destined to so admirable a use.

Martial Law in New-York.

A morning paper says that it is contemplated to enforce martial law in the City next week. The statement is hardly news. For all practical intents and purposes, the City has been under martial law for the past ten days. It has had a Provost-Marshal, a Provost Guard, the free transit of passengers has been interrupted without resort to any legal forms, and men have been placed under arrest for saying in private what could do no possible harm if proclaimed from the house-top. These interruptions of the common law privileges and immunities of the person, can only be justified, if justifiable at all, by the military code. They find no warrant under civil authority. Next week, in view of the draft, it may be necessary to give new stringency to the present restrictions. Cowards and traitors will find their names drafted, and may attempt to escape; mobs may be fomented by the concealed labors of rebel sympathizers; the service of the draft-notices may require, in some instances, the exhibition of more than ordinary force. To guard against such mischievous contingencies, it may be proper to be thoroughly armed at all points, and authority should perhaps be given, even to the irresponsible extent of martial law, to those who are charged with the preservation of public order.

We take it for granted, however, that the moment the draft is completed and the men gathered at their rendezvous, the distasteful spectacle of martial law will no longer offend the sense of our community. New-York is not, we believe, charged with disloyalty. It is not, like Baltimore or Louisville, so leavened with treason, that the most vigorous oversight can alone prevent a calamitous outbreak. The existence of war may justify an increase of vigilance everywhere; but in communities where the aggregate tone of sentiment is perfectly healthy, as it certainly is in this City, the functions of a Federal Police cannot be exercised too delicately. The people have had to choose between the overthrow of the National Government by rebellion, or the risk of sacrificing popular rights by a misuse of the extraordinary powers with which, in a crisis so dangerous, it was necessary to invest the Government. Everything that tends to suggest an abuse of such powers weakens the faith of the people in our institutions, and cools the patriotic zeal for their preservation. If it be the purpose of the authorities to offend the faithful and thoroughly-tried Union sentiment of New-York, they can hardly do better than to treat loyal communities at the North with a sternness it fails, it is charged by some, to visit upon open rebellion.

The immediate occasion for recent assertions of purely military power has been the interference of foolish and vicious persons with enlistments. Where the dissuasion has been open and unmistakable, as in the case of a direct appeal to the intending volunteer not to enlist, there will probably be no two opinions about the propriety of arresting and punishing the intruder. But such instances are few. The attention of the Police has rather been directed to the punishment of opinions, which, if sound, go to destroy confidence in the Government, and so inferentially dishearten those who would otherwise fight for it. The safety and expediency of this policy may well be doubted. It should be only for the gravest reasons that any infringement of the liberty of free speech is permitted; and the suspension of the liberty should be as brief as possible. Under the caption of "Discouraging Enlistments," there is hardly an expression not absolutely laudatory of the Administration; not a criticism upon the conduct of the war; not a sentence descriptive of a battle-field; not a list of killed and wounded and sick, which may not be included. No man who opens his mouth is safe. It is at the discretion of the Police, assisted by a reckless informer, to lodge our most loyal and respectable citizens in the Station-house, or send them to Fort Lafayette. The public security demands that a power thus liable to perversion should at once be withdrawn. Indeed, from the moment when the draft was ordered, the discouragement of enlistments ceased to be even a constructive offence. It wrought no harm to the Government—it in no way lent aid to the enemy. The argument of the discourager could only be noteworthy as indicating his individual loyalty or treasonable bias; and we do not understand that martial law is intended to punish the latter inchoate crime, but to prevent it from becoming mischievous through overt acts. Such, certainly, is the reading of the law in Baltimore, Norfolk and New-Orleans. Why it should have a more exacting interpretation here, we are unapprised.

We repeat the wish that the completion of the draft may be attended by the withdrawal of this unusual authority. The Police has ample employment as a local conservator of order. Employed as it is at present, it not only neglects its more immediate duties, but becomes an object of distrust, if not of disgust, to loyal men; and destroys that unity of feeling between the law-abiding portion of our people, and these guardians of public order, which gives the latter their moral strength and efficacy. The change, we have reason to believe, will be as acceptable to the Police themselves as to the people.

"McClellan Changing His Base Again."—This is the caption of an article in the Richmond Enquirer of Wednesday of last week, which states the fact of Gen. McClellan's moving his troops from Harrison's Bar down the James River on transports. It closes by saying that "McClellan is running away by night—or, to speak more politely, is making another grand strategic move." There can be no doubt whatever that the rebels knew all about Gen. McClellan's movement from Harrison's Landing, from its inception to its close, although the Northern Press refrained from chronicling it until it had been effected; just as they knew all about the progress of the movement of our army on to the Peninsula a half year ago, although the public here were absolutely in the dark about it for some time after the army had got there. At least the Richmond Press, both now and then, published details of both movements, from day to day, as they progressed.

Enlistment of Negroes.

It is remarkable how much fuss resolute zealots can make over a very small matter. Two or three of our smaller States, to judge from the noise made in them, are quite convulsed on the subject of enlisting blacks as soldiers to fight in the ranks of the Union army. Gov. Sprague is busy enrolling a regiment of this class of troops,—the Attorney-General of Massachusetts has promulgated an opinion that they cannot constitutionally be overlooked in drafting men for the war, and an able correspondent of the Times, writing in another column, protests vehemently against allowing negroes to shirk their share of fighting. They are men and citizens, he urges, and therefore have not only a right to be soldiers also, but should by no means be exempt from the corresponding duty.

Now we have not the slightest disposition to balk the wishes of our friends who insist that the negroes shall fight. On the contrary, we should be very glad to have every able-bodied negro on the continent employed in fighting the rebels—who certainly are none too good to be killed by anybody, black or white, who can get at them;—and we should regard every white man who can thus be released from the unpleasant service as so much clear gain to the country. If the negroes can fight, without weakening the army more than they aid it, put them into the ranks by all means. This is the only point that gives us any misgivings. Gov. Sprague cannot probably get more than one negro regiment into the field from his State;—Massachusetts may get two;—possibly a dozen in all might be enlisted in all the Northern States. If this can be done with the general consent, and without damaging the Union cause elsewhere, very well. It will add just so many men to the army, and, in the absence of actual experiment, we have no right to say they will not fight as well as the average of other troops, though we somewhat doubt it.

But we fear we may purchase this questionable aid at too high a price. President Lincoln is reported to have said that the emancipation of the slaves, and their introduction into the Union army, would turn against us 50,000 loyal troops from the Border States who are now fighting on our side. This may or may not be so. It certainly ought to be open to some doubt. But the authority for the statement entitles it to attention, and if it is well founded, its importance entitles it to weight. We cannot afford to make such an exchange. The white troops we should lose, if the President's opinion is worth anything, are far more valuable to us than the black troops we should gain. Besides, we can see very clearly that the enlistment of blacks is certain to excite a great deal of disaffection and bad feeling at the North. Bad men already make it a pretext for stirring up prejudice and hostility among different classes of society,—for exciting distrust of the Government, and for discouraging enlistments. All this is very contemptible and very unpatriotic,—but at the same time it may be very mischievous; and as we can hardly afford just now to accumulate causes of dissension and controversy among ourselves, it may be wise to avoid questions certain to give rise to them, if it can be done without too great loss on the other side. And unless there is a good prospect of getting more help from the blacks than they seem likely, according to present appearances, to yield us, we doubt the policy of pushing the point quite so vehemently as some of our friends are inclined to do. We don't think there is any fear that the loyalty and patriotism of either Massachusetts or Rhode Island is likely to succumb at once, even without colored help. If it is, then by all means let them call on the blacks for aid.

There is one fact, however, which stares us in the face, and becomes more and more pressing in its importance every day. Whether the negroes would be of any service as soldiers or not, they are of infinite service to the rebels as laborers. They are in fact the backbone of the rebellion. They have supplied the lack of a laboring population in the Southern States, while the mass of the people have filled the ranks of the rebel army. If there is any way in which the rebels can be deprived of their aid, it ought to be resorted to. There can be no shadow of doubt in any man's mind that losses from this body of labor cripple the rebels almost as much as losses from their armies in the field. Wherever the negro slaves can be reached, therefore, it is clearly good policy that they should be taken from the rebels. The Confiscation act of last session will probably do as much, if rigidly enforced, as can now be done in any way toward the accomplishment of this object.

The Rebel Conscription.—The Richmond Dispatch of last Saturday urges upon the Rebel Congress, now in session, the absolute necessity of extending the Conscription Act to all persons within the ages of sixteen and fifty-five years—the material between eighteen and thirty-five being now exhausted. By this means it is believed the rebels will be able to raise a force equal to the 600,000 Yankees which Lincoln has now called for, as the journal in question shows that it is necessary for the Confederates to have a force equal to Lincoln. If this measure be carried into effect it will certainly pretty nearly clean out every vestige of the white man from the Southern States. The beardless lads of sixteen and the gray-beards of fifty-five—those whose calves are yet ungrown, and those whose calves are shriveled up, must all don their uniforms, grasp their muskets, if they can find them, and march to the music of rebellion. There will be nothing in the shape of masculine humanity (of the white variety,) in all Dixie, except very small boys and very old codgers. There will be no one able-bodied enough even to maul the niggers, who will have to assign that necessary duty to each other. If Jeff. Davis' despotism was anything less absolute than death, it would be impossible to enforce such a scheme as this; but this or anything else will be enforced, if necessary. We have still an advantage over the rebels, however, in the fact that our immense levies were called out five months before the old and young rebel conscripts can be; and, if they are pushed forward with proper rapidity, will be in the field fighting the present rebel army long before anything can be done in the way of raising this new one.

England, France and the Confederacy.

It seems from the telegraphic summary of European news by the Europa that our transatlantic friends are still breaking their teeth and making wry faces over that hard, rough, terrible nut, the American question. We have it in every variety of form, and on both sides of the Channel, in the Press, on the platform, in the Legislature and in the Cabinet. The prorogation of Parliament having put a stop to the outpourings of the collective wisdom of England, the members have carried the all-absorbing topic into the popular assembly. Fox has been making a speech on the subject to the cutlers of Sheffield, though all we are told of its character is that it advocated non-interference in American affairs. This is certainly a notable circumstance, as it shows the Prime Minister is openly committed to a neutral policy during the recess of Parliament. It has been urged by some, who think they see further into a millstone than other people, that the real danger of intervention would be when the close of the session of Parliament should leave the Cabinet free to act on its own responsibility. But here we have its head coming before a popular assembly and frankly counseling a continuance of the same neutral policy which England has hitherto held. Coming on the heels of the recent debates in the Lords and Commons, and the Queen's speech on the occasion of the prorogation of Parliament, it should be a sufficient quietus to the croakings of intervention which some find a mysterious pleasure in giving forth. With this official reassurance from Lord Palmerston, nobody probably will care a straw for the outgivings of Roebuck, who is reported to have followed the Prime Minister in a speech, urging the claims of the rebel Confederacy to be such as entitled it to recognition by England as an independent Government.

From France the news is not of altogether so agreeable a complexion. It states that Slidell has had an interview with the Emperor Napoleon, upon whom he urged the recognition of the Southern Confederacy; and it is said that Napoleon admits the cogency of the arguments held forth by Slidell in favor of such a course, but says that the greatest barrier to the recognition of the South has been the objections of England. This is certainly a frank confession for the double-tongued oracle of the Tuileries to make; but what is curious in the matter is, that we have the very best reason to believe it that it is strictly true. The Emperor frequently deceives by the very frankness with which he lays bare his policy. He might do so here, did we not know that he has on several occasions, as far back as a year ago, solicited England to join him in an enterprise for obtaining a supply of cotton and tobacco. Though this action on the part of Napoleon does not tend to put him in a very amiable light in our eyes, the feint of pretending (of course, everybody knows it is only pretence) to follow the beck of England in his dealings with the South, is a convenient policy for him to adopt—equally serviceable whether he does or does not wish to aid the rebels. It enables him to seem to be wonderfully struck by the "cogent" arguments of Slidell, while he makes the "objections" of England a pack-horse to carry the burden of responsibility he does not care himself to assume. While, however, we have no assurance that the Emperor has principle enough to keep his hands off if he sees his way clear to interfere, there is nevertheless a prospect of events much nearer home that will give him quite as much as he is able to attend to. Italian affairs, in consequence of Garibaldi's new uprising, are assuming a complexity that will for some time to come absorb all the energies of that scheming brain. For the sake of Italy, we deplore the crisis that seems upon her; but there is no saying but that we may be indebted to the turn of affairs there for the privilege of being let alone in the work we have still to do.

The contrast which, according to Napoleon's own avowal, is presented by the conduct of France and England, in the matter of intervention, cannot fail to be remembered by America. All the motives that can possibly impel France to intervene, are certainly felt in England with ten-fold force; and the firm barrier which she has throughout offered to the meddlesome schemes of the French Emperor, gives evidence of a superior tone of international morality, which it would be unjust in us not to recognize. If, now, with these proofs of the fixed neutrality of England, on the one hand, and the preoccupation of the head of France elsewhere, on the other, we allow any visions of foreign intervention to disturb the unity and vigor with which we devote ourselves to the work of putting down the rebellion, it will be our own fault.

An Explanation from Mr. Phillips.—We give place in another column to a letter addressed to the Tribune by Wendell Phillips. The concession is all the more willingly made because the distinguished Abolitionist therein takes occasion to place himself in a far better position, so far as his relations with the Government are concerned, than he occupied in making his Abingdon speech. Dissenting, as we are so often constrained to dissent, from the radical and intemperate views of Mr. Phillips—views which would be less liable to do harm, if they were not recommended by matchless graces of rhetoric—it is true, in the present instance, to say the orator acquits himself of any premeditated disloyalty, and shows that he has seriously promoted enlistments in Massachusetts, and only leaves us to regret his imprudence in uniformly using such topics in denunciation of the Government, as tend to beget indifference as to its perpetuation, and indirectly discourage those who would else hasten to its defence.

—Ex President Buchanan, it is now stated, has resolved not to leave "Wheatland" to reside upon the new farm, near Downingtown, lately purchased by himself and Col. Forney.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Four Millions Already Paid Out in Bounties by the Government.

Three Millions Additional to be Paid Immediately.

The Money Taken from the Consuls at New-Orleans to be Returned.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1862.

THE REPORT OF HON REVERDY JOHNSON.

Hon. Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, has made his report to the Government upon the points in the administration of affairs in New-Orleans, he not being asked what fitness to administrate, and the President has approved its conclusions. It is understood that he recommends the return to the Consul of the Netherlands of the $800,000 seized by Gen. Butler; that the $716,000 be returned to the French Consul, and also that a large amount of sugar and other merchandise be restituted to the Greek, British and other foreign merchants, detained in New-Orleans, on, according to Mr. Johnson, these seizures by Gen. Butler cannot be justified by civil or military law.

A BUNCH WITH A SLIGHT FOUNDATION.

At a dinner party recently, a prominent Louisiana said, in the presence of Reverdy Johnson, that with the latter as Governor, and Gen. Dix in the place of Butler, the people would rally, and through a Convention, bring the State back into the Union. From this private remark, doubtless, has risen the rumor that such an arrangement is to be consummated. It has no other basis.

THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

The bounties paid and to be paid by the Government to the new volunteers, already amount to seven millions. Of these, four millions have been paid. For a day or two all other payments at the Treasury have been suspended, for the sake of closing books up. It is supposed that another day or two will pay off the remaining three millions. These of course are merely the bounties paid by the National Government. It is estimated that the other bounties paid by State Governments, counties, town organizations, etc., will swell the amount expended, beyond the legitimate payment of soldiers' wages and costs in raising volunteers under the President's call for three hundred thousand more to fifty millions.

THE COMING DRAFT.

Mr. Stanton stated to-day that the order for drafting to fill up the old regiments would be issued without fail by the 1st of September. The old regiments which have not been recruited up to the full strength before that time, will at once be filled by draft. This matter has only been delayed thus long from a desire to have the old regiments filled up with men, whose term of service would last as long as the rest of the regiments. Men drafted into old regiments can only be held for nine months, while the rest of the regiment is, of course, held for the full term of enlistment.

THE ONE-DOLLAR TREASURY NOTES.

Proofs of the new one-dollar Treasury Notes were sent back to New-York, for a few minor corrections, to-day. This will delay the issue of these notes a day or two longer than has been expected.

THE NEW-YORK TAX APPOINTMENTS.

The New-York appointments under the tax law again engrossed Secretary Chase all day. Congressmen, and others, have been very busy lobbying. There has been a heavy outside pressure, and a large influx of candidates and their friends. The recommendations were finally completed this evening, and Mr. Chase will send in a list of them to the President to-morrow.

THE MASSACHUSETTS APPOINTMENTS.

The Massachusetts appointments will be delayed a short time. It has been determined to reorganize the Districts there before making the appointments, and Mr. Sumner is here excessively occupied in arranging this matter.

APPOINTMENTS FOR INDIANA.

The following are the appointments for the State of Indiana, under the Internal Revenue law, made to-day:

First District—Horace B. Sheppard, of Vincennes, Collector; John Pitcher, of Mount Vernon, Assessor.

Second District—Daniel Sigler, Collector; Thomas S. Slaughter, of Corydon, Assessor.

Third District—John S. Hunter, of Bloomington, Collector; Wm. S. Browning, Assessor.

Fourth District—James L. Luter, of Osgood, Collector; N. V. Kyger, Assessor.

Fifth District—Caleb Johnson, Collector; John Gwynn, of Richmond, Assessor.

Sixth District—Theodore F. Haughey, of Indianapolis, Collector; Wm. A. Bradshaw, of Indianapolis, Assessor.

Seventh District—John G. Crain, of Rockville, Collector; James Farrington, of Terre Haute, Assessor.

Eighth District—Jno. L. Smith, of Sandersville, Collector; Joseph Potter, of Delphi, Assessor.

Ninth District—John F. Dodds, of Logansport, Collector; David Gunier, of Crown Point, Assessor.

Tenth District—William H. Withers, of Fort Wayne, Collector; W. Williams, of Warsaw, Assessor.

Eleventh District—Dewitt C. Chipman, of Hartsville, Collector; Simeon Fisher, of Wabash, Assessor.

RETURNED PRISONERS IN WASHINGTON.

The following released prisoners, returned from Richmond, have arrived: John S. Crocker, Ninety-third New-York; Lieut.-Col. G. W. Neff, Second Kentucky; Maj. J. D. Potter, Thirty-eighth New-York; Maj. A. S. Cassidy, Ninety-third New-York; Capt. L. Gordon, Eleventh Massachusetts; Lieut. C. W. Tillinghast, Ninety-ninth New-York; Lieut. T. Swann, Seventh Maine; T. S. Hamlin, commanding Company G, Thirty-eighth New-York; Capt. John Downey, Fire Zouaves; Capt. M. Griffin, Eighth Maine; Capt. O. Hettinger, Sixth New-York; Capt. J. T. Drew, Second Vermont; Capt. G. W. Shurtleff, Second Ohio; Capt. R. A. Fish, Thirty-second New-York; Capt. G. Ann Austin, Second Kentucky; Capt. E. H. Jenkins, Ninety-ninth New-York; Lieut. A. M. Underhill, Fire Zouaves; Lieut. D. L. Gordon, Second United States Cavalry; Lieut. J. F. Kent, Third United States Infantry; Lieut. S. W. Cahill, Eleventh Massachusetts; Lieut. J. Westcoter, Eighth New-York; J. C. Gregg, telegraph operator, Hooker's Division; Lieut. J. J. Nevin, Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania; Adj. H. S. Lambard, Eighth Illinois Cavalry; Lieut. A. T. Wilcox, Seventh Ohio; W. Lane, of Washington; Lieut. R. F. Harris, Twenty-fifth New-York; J. H. Hodges, Assistant-Surgeon United States Army; W. V. Hayt, First Michigan; E. M. Hammond, Sergeant-Major Eighth Illinois Cavalry; M. Dunnell, drummer, Twenty-eighth New-York; Lieut. M. Although, First Maryland; Capt. L. G. Cassidy, Ninety-third New-York; Second Assistant Engineer F. L. Hines, United States steamer Dahlgren; Third Assistant Engineer A. M. Perkins, United States steamer Union; T. A. Palmer, First Officer United States steamer Union; Lieut. S. K. Hitridge, Second Maine; Capt. J. A. Roth, Fifth Connecticut; Capt. W. D. Davis, Twenty-seventh Indiana; Lieut. Timothy Schlynch, One Hundredth New-York; Lieut. J. A. Newell, One Hundredth New-York; Lieut. J. R. King, Ohio Artillery; Lieut. R. J. Rice and Lieut. C. P. Gardner, One Hundredth New-York; Adj. W. M. Brevort, First Michigan Cavalry; Morris Windham, First New-York Cavalry; Chief Engineer C. H. Baker, United States Navy; Lieut. John Bagley, Sixty-ninth New-York; Capt. R. H. Schirr, Lieut. A. R. Spencer,

THE ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

The statement that the army correspondents are to be permanently expelled from Fort's and Mr. Chandler's fleet are therefore premature. Up to this time, no official intimation has been received, but it has been confidently announced, that none will be permitted to remain except those who conform to the spirit as well as the letter of the instructions about mentioned notice.

ADDITIONAL MILITARY PRISON.

Another military prison has been prepared. It is a large warehouse in Greenpoint, capable of accommodating five to six hundred. About 100 are at present in Fort Lafayette here.

PACIFIC RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

Under the authority of the Act of July 1, 1862, to secure construction of railroads and telegraph lines to the Pacific Ocean, the Secretary of the Interior has appointed the following named gentlemen to be Commissioners in conjunction with the other Commissioners named in the Act, viz.: Samuel J. Tilden and Hiram F. Penn, of New-York; Wm. D. Gallagher, of Indiana; Hanson W. Lawran, of the District of Columbia, and Dr. G. M. Wesselhaft, of California.

Letters have been received here by Rev. James Williams, Agent of Emigration, from Rev. H. H. Garnett, of New-York, and other colored men of influence in the North, warmly seconding the plan of the President for the colonization of the free negroes in Central America.

AMERICAN PIRATES IN MEXICAN WATERS.

Mr. Thiers, the French merchant vessels which recently visited some of the Mexican water-courses having been plundered by pirates, the French Government has ordered four light-draft gunboats, three at Cherbourg, one at Toulon, for the service of the inland navigation of the country. These boats are now on their way, and will probably reach their destination before the end of the month. The French papers which bring this fact into notice say that the pirates infesting the Mexican shores and rivers are supposed to be United States citizens engaged by JUARES in the service of the Mexican navy.

SIR PERCY WYNDHAM.

Among the returned prisoners, to-day, is Sir Percy Wyndham, of the First New-Jersey Cavalry, the gallant cavalrman concerning whose capture the rebels have been making so much ado.

TAKEN PRISONER.

The rebel Gen. Stuart's Adjutant is said to have been taken prisoner to-day.

PENSION FRAUDS.

Benjamin Ellicott, of Wisconsin, has been appointed special agent for the detection of frauds in the pension office, under the act of July 14, 1862.

THE CORCORAN RECEPTION.

The Arrangements Perfected for the Programme.

The Committee on National Affairs of the Common Council, was in session in the City Hall during the entire of yesterday, receiving communications from the different Societies that desire to participate in the ceremony of the affair. A programme was finally agreed upon, and will be found in our advertising columns. Every Hibernian Association in the City is striving its utmost to make the spectacle a splendid one.

Yesterday afternoon the following dispatch and letter were received:

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Alderman Terrence Farley, No. 8 City Hall:

We will arrive in Jersey City at 2 o'clock on Friday next. Particulars sent by letter.

WM. WALSH,
THOMAS STEVENSON, } Committee.
HENRY SMITH,

WILLARD'S HOTEL, WASHINGTON, D. C., Wednesday, Aug. 19.

DEAR FARLEY: We have just completed our arrangements. We will leave here on Wednesday morning for Baltimore, where the General will remain until Thursday, when he will leave for Philadelphia, at which place he will remain until Friday morning. He will leave Philadelphia on Friday morning, at 11 o'clock, and arrive at Jersey City at 2 o'clock P. M. You will please to see Capt. Wolcott, Superintendent of Jersey City Ferry Company, and arrange with him to have a special boat at the depot, to convey the General and suite to Castle Garden, where I fear it will be best to land.

You will also see that the military and civic societies are furnished with music. The representatives of the several societies will call upon you to arrange the details. Very truly yours,

WM. WALSH,
THOS. STEVENSON, } Committee.
HENRY SMITH,

The array of societies named in the programme promises an imposing display, and the City will probably be thronged with untold thousands of spectators from distant points.

MOVEMENT AMONG THE FIREMEN.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Aug. 20, 1862.

Whereas, The firemen of the City of New-York have, from time immemorial, displayed their love for their native City by rendering their services at all times to the citizens of this Metropolis, and their unfailing loyalty and fidelity to the Government of the United States;

Whereas, The Common Council of the City of New-York decline giving to Brig.-Gen. M. Corcoran and his companions such a reception as their services in the field and their sufferings in prison so justly entitle them to; and

Whereas, The firemen of the City of New-York have been excluded by the Common Council such a position in the escort, to meet the gallant officers alluded to, on their good services merit, therefore I recommend the firemen do assemble in the Park on Friday, the 22d, at 2 o'clock P. M., in uniform, (fire-cap, red shirt and blue pants and belt,) without apparatus, for the purpose of taking such part in the ceremonies of the reception as we have been requested to do by the Committee on National Affairs of the Common Council of the City.

As the time appointed is too short to call a formal meeting of the Board of Engineers and Foremen, I feel confident that this unofficial call will be responded to in the same spirit in which it is made.

JOHN DECKER,
Chief Engineer New-York Fire Department.

MOVEMENTS OF GEN. CORCORAN.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Gen. MICHAEL CORCORAN left Washington at 6 o'clock, for the North.

GEN. CORCORAN IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

Gen. CORCORAN received the citizens at the Eutaw House this evening, which was thronged from 5 to 7 o'clock with an immense concourse anxious to see the martyr patriot, and welcome him to the city. A large number of Irish citizens also called, to whom he made personal appeals to arouse their countrymen of Baltimore to rally to the standard of the Union.

He consented to address the people to-night at Monument-square, and the front of the Court-house was beautifully decorated and illuminated for the occasion. Mayor CHANLER presided, and introduced the General, who was received by the immense concourse with long repeated cheers.

Gen. CORCORAN returned thanks for the enthusiasm of his reception, and attributed it to the glorious cause in which he was identified rather than to any personal merit. He then proceeded to give an account of his imprisonment, and detailed a number of incidents of outrage at Richmond, Charleston, Columbia and Salisbury. He described the prison a slaughter-house, where were 300 Union citizen prisoners, among whom he had found a number of Irishmen who had refused to fight under any other flag than that which they had sworn allegiance to on their arriving in the country. Their treatment was more brutal than that of the military prisoners, and among them were old gray-headed men, bowed down with suffering and sorrow, but firm in their allegiance. The deaths among them averaged two a day for the last six

THE ORPHEUS C. KERR PAPERS,

Containing a full and veracious history of the untimely Rhadamanthus, whose appointment excites in the breast of forts and cities, and the pensive of pensive strategy, have struck terror to the heart of myriad Europe, and threatened the backbone of the rebellion in its vitals. The book opens with an entirely new and setting forth certain interesting events of the irreproachable author's childhood; the sympathetic opinion of him entertained by the doctor; his production of the first sunflower; his service from that time entirely absorbed and engrossed (the Editor writes) his subsequent flight to the celebrated Sixth Ward; and his subsequent arrest for the ignominious ultimate of living in Washington!

The remarkable adventures of the beloved General of the Mackerel Brigade; the gifted and philosophical Captain William Brown, Editor; the strategical Contraband Bob Shanty; the Quartermaster Captain Sawyer; the Chief Executive Captain Sawyer; the Chief; the Orange County Horrorists; and the Astronomical Cavalry—not to speak of the gentle Jones.

NOTICE.

All those who want to go to Gen. FRANZ SIGEL'S CORPS, are hereby invited to join, at once, my regiment. The following letter will explain my position:

NEW-YORK, Aug. 2, 1862.

Col. Elias Peissner, New-York:

COLONEL: I am authorized by the Secretary of War to assure the Governor of New-York that three regiments of infantry raised in this State will be assigned to the First Corps d'Armée, Army of Virginia, commanded by Maj.-Gen. Franz Sigel.

Gov. Morgan has authorized me to assure you that your regiment, the Fifth Senatorial District Regiment, will be so assigned.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE G. LYON,
Captain and Aid-de-Camp to Gen. Sigel.

My regiment is the only new one in this City which will be attached to Gen. Sigel's command.

The Fifth Senatorial District is prepared to aid me in all my efforts, and pledges its honor for the welfare of the families of my recruits.

Come forward at once, for the regiment must and will be completed in the next ten days.

I have already over 800 men in camp.

ELIAS PEISSNER,
Colonel Commanding Fifth Senatorial Dist. Reg.
Headquarters, Lincoln Hall, No. 149 East Houston-st.

SPINOLA'S EMPIRE BRIGADE.

ATTENTION! ATTENTION! ATTENTION!
No. 64 Nassau-st.
Company D,
HILLHOUSE LIGHT INFANTRY,
Col. F. J. GLASSEN, Commanding.
RECRUITS WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

Patriotic young men of New-York, if you desire to enlist in the service of your country, in this her hour of trial, come forward at once—one and all.

You are now called upon to rally to her support. Do not wait to be drafted, but show to the world that we are not compelled to resort to such an expedient in order to crush this monster rebellion.

To arms, then! and join a command officered by men who have had experience in the field, and who are thoroughly qualified to look after the requirements of their men.

$50 bounty paid after being mustered in.

Clothing of the best quality. Relief tickets furnished to families.

Dead-beats need not apply, as such men deter recruiting.

E. P. DOHERTY, Captain Commanding,
Late First Regiment U. S. Sharpshooters.
First Lieutenant, J. H. GOODELL.
Second Lieutenant, THOS. A. HENRY.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEERS.

AMERICANS, TO THE FRONT RANK!

JARED MAXON having been duly authorized to raise a Company, it is presumed that there is a class of patriotic young men in New-York who desire to enlist in the service of their country, with the intent to render distinguished service in the field; and under officers who have a regard (in recruiting) to the selection of that class, as well as whose moral qualifications would render them agreeable companions in arms.

Such, and none others, are wanted immediately for this Company. Non-commissioned officers selected from the most efficient in the ranks. An advance, as bounty and pay of $60 will be paid to each recruit on or before being mustered into the service of the United States.

Pay and subsistence commences on enlistment.

All those desirous of enlisting are solicited to call and enroll themselves immediately, at the office, No. 386 West-st., corner of 10th-st.

Capt. J. MAXON, Recruiting Officer.

THE NEW BOUNTIES ARE NOW ALL PAID.

$50, IN addition to the regular pay
$25 OF IT IN CASH, SOON AFTER SWEARING IN.
$25 IT WHEN THE COMPANY IS FULL.
$40 OF IT WHEN THE REGIMENT IS FULL.
RELIEF TICKETS, WORTH $2 A WEEK,
given immediately to families.

Uniforms at once, and good quarters on Staten Island, with fine bathing and fishing.

$100 BOUNTY, OR 160 ACRES OF LAND, at the end of the war, which will probably close within another year. $2 PAID DOWN to any one on bringing in a recruit, when he swears in.

Experienced officers and the best of treatment guaranteed.

FOURTH REGIMENT EMPIRE BRIGADE.
JAMES C. BURKE, Colonel.

Co. H, (Capt. JOHN D. HEARN,) requires twenty more? Four men to complete its number. This being the only truly Irish regiment now organizing in the State, young Irishmen about to enlist had better join it, and serve under the green flag. The regiment is intended to be exclusively Irish.

Recruits enlisting in this company will receive $100 from the United States.
$50 from the State of New-York.
$25 from the City and County.
$13, one month's pay in advance.
Of which, $50 will be paid down on passing muster.

The War in America—Its Sympathy with the Slaves—Mr. Lincoln's Government and Anti-Slavery—Fremont and Hunter—Why a Master of Slaves Applies Confiscation—Is the Object for Which Europe—Scene of Crime—Jamaica Cotton, Sugar, Rice—[illegible]

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

KINGSTON, JAMAICA, THURSDAY, Aug. 7, 1862.

With Jamaica, we have been accustomed to hear of wars, and hear of rumors of wars, but of the position of war we knew little or nothing. The civil war in the United States, and the French invasion of Mexico, are matters, therefore, which interest us deeply. In regard to America, the world is divided in opinion as to the end sought to be attained by the war. There are those—and they are many—who deny that the freedom of the blacks forms any part of the question at issue. It is the prevalence of this feeling, I believe, which has secured sympathizers for the South, in quarters where such sympathy was not expected. Of the holders of such views, there are, doubtless, many in Jamaica; but there are many more who have thought more deeply on the subject, and who have come to the conclusion that Slavery is the cause of the war, and that it is ordained its death shall be the death of Slavery. There are those who declare that Mr. Lincoln's Government is the true representation of a party to which Anti-Slavery principles were only profession. Such people cannot appreciate the high motives which guide men like LINCOLN and SEWARD. They forget that, sworn to maintain the Constitution and protect the institutions of the country, these men could not use the power at their disposal to knock Slavery on the head. They would falsify their oath. The advantage of their position was to be seen through a different medium, which those who are rendered blind by prepossession, of course, cannot behold. It hardly needed action on their part to affect Slavery. The very fact that they, as men avowing Anti-Slavery principles, were called to power in the States, proved at once the tendency of popular feeling. It proved that the nation was becoming Anti-Slavery, and that the doom of the accursed system was only a matter of time. But there is a vast deal more to place the character of the Lincoln Government in an honorable light before the world. Look at the many steps which Congress has taken during this Administration to favor universal liberty. Consider the effects of three or four great movements—the Emancipation Aid act—the abolition of Slavery in the District of Columbia—the execution of the pirate GORDON, and the concession of the "Right of Search." Do these not give support of the truly Anti-Slavery principles of Mr. LINCOLN and his Cabinet?

It might appear unaccountable that I should devote so much of a mere letter in dealing with a matter that concerns yourselves and on which you must naturally know a great deal more than I can ever hope to learn; but I have given the matter this prominence because the impression is abroad that Jamaica, too, had sympathy with the South. It is no such thing. Our hope is universal emancipation, and we feel that to attain that end the North, and the North alone, must be the instrumentality. A very large section of the people of this island pray for the success of the North, and hope anxiously for its final triumph. This prayer was breathed among hundreds at a great Anti-Slavery meeting held at Mr. PHILLIPPO's chapel on the 1st of August to celebrate the anniversary of West Indian emancipation.

I have alluded to Mexico. A sudden interest in that question has been excited here, by a rumor that, with the permission of Her Britannic Majesty's Government, Jamaica is to become the depôt for the French troops destined to operate against Mexican independence. There is something incredible about the news. The statement is that about the month of October, something like 20,000 French troops will concentrate in Jamaica.

In my previous letter, I mentioned the failure of the provision crop through the long prevalence of "Revival," and the sufferings which the people were enduring for the want of food. Two weeks ago corn-meal was sold at $11 a barrel, and wheaten flour at from $17 to $18. I am happy to say that within the last week, there have been several arrivals with breadstuffs, and that prices have in consequence gone down.

By the last packet the intelligence reached us that the British Government has consented to compromise with us a debt we owe them of £250,000 for an annuity perpetually of £6,400 per annum, which annuity is to be expended for the benefit of the colony. The mother country has, for once, been liberal.

Far more gratifying was another piece of intelligence received. It is stated that, henceforth Jamaica is to be made the depôt of the Royal Mail Company's steamers. If this arrangement be carried out the City of Kingston will benefit to the extent of at least £50,000 per annum. If it is carried out, I should say the mother country is learning to be considerate toward this colony.

If I mistake not, I have already informed you that our last quarter's revenue shows a surplus of £15,000. Will you not say we are improving?

The Circuit Court for the July term has been brought to a close. The calendars showed a long array of crime. There were no less than forty-two cases for the precinct, among them a charge of murder and another for attempting to murder. It is gratifying to state, however, that in all other parts of the island crime appears to be on the decrease.

There is a movement going forward throughout the island for raising subscriptions towards the Prince Consort Memorial Fund.

Jamaica cotton has been highly prized at the Kew Exhibition. In fact, the colony has altogether come off with flying colors from the World's Fair. She has obtained seventy prizes and sixty-four honorable mentions.

The Plantagenet sails at 2 o'clock.

PERSONAL.

—Mr. Wendell Phillips publishes the following card in the Boston Transcript:

BOSTON, Aug. 14, 1862.

MY DEAR SIR: You inclose me the card of three persons styling themselves "Directors of the Illinois Central Company," misquoting one of my speeches, and stating that they did not know me. I presume this is true. That I neither claimed their acquaintance, nor avowed their opinions, you will see by the copy of my speech which I inclose. Whether these persons represent or disagree with me in my estimate of Gen. McCLELLAN, as military and utterly unable to say yes and no, their card does not inform us. They carefully avoid giving any opinion upon this, the main point concerned. It is, however, of no consequence, as my statement rests on sufficient authority, fully as trustworthy, to say the least, as any they could furnish.

With thanks for your courtesy,

Yours, truly, WENDELL PHILLIPS.

S. C. GRANT, Esq., Chicago.

—The Columbus (Ohio) Journal publishes the following telegram from Gen. Morgan at Cumberland Gap:

AUG. 11, off Mt. VERNON, Aug. 10, 1862.

There is very undue excitement on the subject of the rebel demonstrations in East Tennessee. You have no cause for anxiety. Health good.

GEO. W. MORGAN.

—Henry Hammond, a resident of the island lying at the entrance of Gardner's Bay, L. I., attempted to murder his wife on Saturday last, and then tried to commit suicide. With a dirk knife, which he deliberately purchased for the purpose, he inflicted no less than fourteen gashes upon various parts of her person, and then drew the same weapon across his own throat, and stabbed himself in the side with such violence as to break a rib. Neither his own wounds, however, nor those which he inflicted upon his wife, are likely to prove fatal. Jealousy was the cause of the terrible deed. Hammond is now in jail at Greenport.

—Dr. Thomas M. Hope, of Alton, Ill., has been arrested and confined in the Penitentiary at that place, charged with disloyalty, and refusing the oath of allegiance when tendered him. It appears that he was arrested on the following charges: He had refused to take the oath himself, and had refused to let his house be occupied as a drill room, on the ground that the Federal officer could have it for any such purpose. He wanted nothing to do with those whose hands were dripping with the blood of his friends in the South.

—Gen. Fremont has published a card, denying that he ever declared that this war would continue until the Democrats were reinstated in authority. He consents to become a candidate for a seat in the next Congress, but will not do anything to secure an election which may interfere with his military duties.

—Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, is mourning the death of a son, a Lieutenant on Gen. Hamilton's Staff. He died of typhoid fever which he contracted at Corinth.

—Gen. Fremont and family are now on a brief visit to Major Haskell, of Gloucester, Mass., formerly one of his Staff.

—Capt. Ezra Nye and Mr. Tillinghast, of Clinton Township, N. J., have offered $100 each to a fund for volunteers from that township.

—Gen. Geary is rapidly recovering from the wound which he received in the battle of Slaughter Mountain. His arm will be saved.

—Mayor Bemis, of Springfield, Mass., has issued an order enjoining upon the police special vigilance in the arrest of skedaddlers.

—The funeral of Major Albert S. Ingalls, of the Mozart Regiment, was held at West Cambridge, Mass., on Aug. 13.

—Mr. Thurlow Weed, it is said, will go to Europe at an early day, on business of great importance for the Government.

—Col. Porter, of Niagara Falls, is recovering from his recent severe illness, and is now with his regiment.

—Col. Fiala, of Gen. Fremont's Staff, was in St. Louis, en route to New-York, on Friday last.

—Ex-Gov. Fairbanks, of Vermont, is visiting the copper mines at Lake Superior.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE quickest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Gleet, or Gonorrhœa of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure cheap by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., the only place.

SURE CURE.—DR. POWERS, SUCCESSFULLY consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. He gives advice free, and guarantees an immediate cure or no pay. Glorious triumph of medicine. Dr. POWERS' specific remedies for syphilitic, mercurial and all other dark skin diseases; for certainty unparalleled, and for the entire and control of disease, nothing mentioned. Positively no charge for advice. Cure guaranteed. Dr. POWERS' Fire Engine of Life restores the vigor of youth in from two weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions. Office No. 12 Laight-st. Dr. POWERS' French Preventive, the greatest invention of the age. Will prevent disease and pain, and cost but a trifle. Three, 50 per dozen; mailed free on receipt of the price. Address Dr. POWERS, No. 12 Laight-st.

DR. CORBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 15 Duane-st. to his present very convenient suite of offices at No. 37 Center-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 Chambers-st. Dr. C. may be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his specialty, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, and make no charge. Gleet, stricture of the urethra, impotency, seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE confidently consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 20 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial, and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to offer the most speedy and permanent cure, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, will call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured. N. B.—Dr. C. is a qualified physician and surgeon, and a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New-York. Office hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—Dr. A. M. MACRICHAN, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 100th edition of his Prize Essay, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York; or can be sent by mail, free of postage, to any part of the United States and Canada, by inclosing $1 and addressing Box No. 1,224 New-York City. PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain disease in four days; leaves no injurious effects behind; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and dangerous effects of all other remedies; cures in one dose in least time; cures without exposure; and, what is more, effects a permanent cure, yet without the positively venomous property of assimilating the vital and permanent taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will consistently claim. The value in time, reputed loss of business, that scientific medical and surgical knowledge, taught in application to Dr. Hunter, should prove that he is not overrated. Any druggist, even the physician, in regard to some painful patient, who has exhausted the whole field of the family, and still the disease will appear. He now offers a great secret to the quack doctor in the City that he can be consulted; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. If it is it is a vile, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 25 three-cent stamps, 200 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA, IN AND FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT.—WISTAR MORRIS, a holder of Bonds secured by two certain mortgages of the Quakake Railroad Company, dated July 1, 1857, and payable one and three years, respectively, after date, and also a holder of Bonds so secured as aforesaid, who have joined in the cause of the suit and have given notice hereto complaining, vs. THE QUAKAKE RAILROAD COMPANY, and against William D. Lewis and Charles Hartshorne, Trustees under and by virtue of said mortgages. In Equity, of July Term, 1862. No. 1.—Under and by virtue of a decree of the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania, made in the above entitled cause, upon the seventh day of June, A. D., 1862, will be exposed to public sale, by sale or auction or outcry, upon TUESDAY, the thirteenth day of September, A. D., 1862, at 12 o'clock M., at the Philadelphia Exchange, in the city of Philadelphia, by Moses Thomas & Sons, Auctioneers, the following described property, upon the terms and conditions hereinafter stated, to wit: The whole of the railroad of the said Quakake Railroad Company, from its junction with the Beaver Meadow Railroad, in Carbon County, State of Pennsylvania, to the point in Black Township, Schuylkill County, State aforesaid, where the said the Quakake Railroad intersects the Catawissa Railroad, including the right of way, and the road bed and superstructure thereon, in connection with, or for the maintenance of said railroad, in connection with the railways, rails, bridges, masonry and other superstructure, and all culverts, turn-tables, side tracks, depots, stations, buildings and other structures and improvements of every description, appertaining thereto, and the said railroad; and all real estate of every description, and all tolls, rents, issues and profits, accrued and to accrue from the said railroad, or any part thereof, (save only so much as may be necessary for expenses and repairs,) and all the ways, streets, alleys, passages, waters, water courses, franchises, hereditaments, rights, liberties, privileges and appurtenances, whatsoever, and generally all the lands, tenements and hereditaments of the said the Quakake Railroad Company.
A more specific and detailed account of some of the items of property included in and referred to in the foregoing description, may be given as follows:
RAILROAD.
which is about fourteen miles in length, and extends westwardly from its junction with the Beaver Meadow Railroad, in the southeast of the Quakake and Black Creeks in Carbon County, along the valley of the Quakake Creek, and that of the east branch of the Little Schuylkill River to the intersection of the said the Quakake Railroad with the Catawissa Railroad, in Black Township, Schuylkill County. Ten miles of the railroad are graded for a double track. The length of the single track (including sidings) is about 13 miles. Rail—heaviest rolling. The railroad is in good order, has been used and laid with American iron weighing fifty pounds to the yard. There is one water station, but no engine house. There is also an iron turn-table of the best construction, forty-five feet in diameter. The road is provided with all necessary sidings and switches.
BRIDGES.
There are five bridges. All are substantially built, save one, which is on trestles. It is well built, and intended to replace the bridge over the Quakaka Creek, at the Beaver Meadow Junction, recently destroyed by fire. With this exception there is no trestle work on the road. The tunnels of the railroad are the Quakake Creek, and the east branch of the Little Schuylkill River, is laid and erected for the purpose of accommodating a double track.
TERMS OF SALE.
The said railroad, property, franchises and premises mentioned in the above description, and hereinafter described, will be exposed to sale entire and in one lot, and the following terms and conditions will be observed in the making of the said sale, in accordance with the decree of the Court:
The said premises shall be sold to the highest and best bidder; and in case any of the holders of any of the said bonds or coupons intended to be secured by said two mortgages shall become purchasers by themselves or with others, they shall be and are by said decree authorized to deliver their said bonds or coupons to the trustees under said two mortgages, in exchange as in said decree is mentioned,) who shall indorse thereon the amount of dividends, if any, which the holders would be respectively entitled to receive on account of such bonds or coupons, as their portion of the proceeds of sale on distribution, if the purchase money was paid in cash, after deducting therefrom all proper costs, charges and expenses, outstanding and costs incurred by said trustees; in said decree, or on which shares or dividends the said indorsement shall be a full discharge and acquittance, and the total amount thereof shall be credited to said purchasers on account of the price or purchase money bid by them, and the balance of said purchase money shall be paid in cash to said trustees. And in the event that the holders of said b

Loss of the British Steamer Lima on the South American Coast.

The steamship Champion, Capt. WILSON, arrived last night from Aspinwall, which port she left at ten o'clock last, bringing $11,165 in specie, and 17 passengers.

The Champion was detained at Aspinwall six days, awaiting the arrival of the Golden Gate, not having received any intelligence of her loss. She therefore sailed without any California news or papers, as no boat had arrived up to her departure.

She brings the following amount of specie from Aspinwall:

UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA.

Condition of Affairs in Panama—The Course of Dias as Provisional Governor—Business Dull—Favorable News from the Interior—Naval Affairs, &c.

PANAMA, Monday, Aug. 4, 1862.

Since the pronunciamiento of the 25th, by which Gen. GUARDIA was ousted, and Señor MANUEL MARIA MALLARINO made Provisional Governor of the State, matters have been very quiet, though progressive. On the same day of the revolt, the new Governor sent a circular note to all the Consuls, promising that good order should prevail, and that citizens, as well as foreigners, should be properly protected in their persons and property. He appealed to his former record, while Governor of the Province, in the early part of the California emigration, when he actively acted in the most courageous manner in the protection of the American passengers who then filled all our streets, and who frequently got at loggerheads with the native people. The same day he took possession of all the public offices, records and what little cash there was on hand in the Treasury, as well as all the cuartels and police stations. In this he was aided by Colonel SARRACOLONA, MOSQUERA's military commandant here, who gave him a guard of his men for the purpose.

Next day he organized his Government, naming, generally, good men for the posts; of course many of them were under the Old Government, being of "fast color." A bando was then read in the streets ordering all persons in command of vessels or bungoes trading on the bay coast to report all cargo, passengers and letters to the Prefect of Police, on entering or sailing from this port. Another proclamation ordered all able-bodied citizens to assemble on the Plaza of Santa Ana on the afternoon of Sunday, to be enrolled in the militia for duty if called upon. At this meeting it is said that five hundred and thirty two men enrolled their names. On the 31st, Col. SARRACOLONA dispatched, at the request of Gov. DIAS, one hundred and twenty-five men, in two vessels, on a secret expedition. The destination appeared to be Agua Dulce, which river is the bay is the outlet for Santiago, the new capital of the legal Governor. Some say this force will be recruited on the route, and will then attack Gov. GUARDIA at Santiago, but I presume it is only intended as a corps of observation to watch and perhaps throw obstacles in the way of any offensive movements on the part of the Governor. Gov. DIAS sold four splendid pieces of bronze cannon, taken from the old Spanish fort at Chagres, for $1,200, to partly defray the expenses of this expedition.

By a late arrival from Santiago, my idea is confirmed that the stories about Gov. GUARDIA having 2,000 men with which to reinstate himself at Panama are false. He had not more than 150 men at command, and it was doubtful if he could raise 500 in all the State for the purpose of attacking the Provisional Governor and Col. SARRACOLONA in this city.

The time of Gov. GUARDIA expires on the first day of September; and as the war MOSQUERA is now making against the reactionists in the neighboring State of Cauca will probably be brought to a close by that time in his favor, I incline to the belief that the Guardia men will await the result before taking any active measures against Gov. DIAS and his party. In the meantime, the local business of the Isthmus is almost entirely suspended, and the necessaries of life are becoming exorbitantly dear. Rice, which is half the food of the population of the State, and which is raised in abundance on the Isthmus, is retailed at 10 cents per pound. Some of the wholesale merchants in Panama have closed their shops, the trade being insufficient to pay the commercial taxes.

It is reported that Capt. REBEL of SARRACOLONA's forces, who went into the interior to recruit men, was captured by a party under Señor Capt. ARRONIS MORAN, of GUARDIA's forces, near the town of Pacaurote, but satisfactory evidence is received that the story is false.

A large number of the protests of Gen. HERRAN, the Constitutional Minister of New-Granada in Washington, against Gen. MOSQUERA, his father-in-law, in the shape of a heavy pamphlet, reached here by the last mail from New-York, destined for all parts of the Republic. I have not yet found time to read it, but it is said to be exceedingly well written, and bitter as gall on his distinguished relative. It is a pity that political feuds should alienate such exalted position, talent and worth as these two men possess.

Business, as I have said before, is very dull here. The excessive discounts on drafts on the United States, at least 20 per cent., does not tend to help us any. The United States Consul at Panama having refused to allow longer the "commercial law" to be invoked upon the steamship agents, has cut off very largely the income of the State, and left the employees of the Government without salaries—so we are all very poor and expect to be poorer yet.

Capt. LAMMAS, of the United States steam-frigate Saranac, at Panama, received orders from Flag-Officer BELL, from San Francisco, by last mail, to cruise on the west coast of Mexico as soon as the United States sloop-of-war Cyane should arrive from Valparaiso; but feeling that American interests might need more protection, in the unsettled state of affairs among us, than could be afforded by the small crew of the latter vessel, addressed a communication to the United States Consuls at Panama and Aspinwall, for their opinion on the matter, which I understand is favorable to his remaining. So he will take the responsibility of disobeying his instructions.

The British steamer Anne, which arrived at Panama from Buenaventura on the 2d instant, brings news favorable to the cause of MOSQUERA, in Cauca. He had, before he sent reinforcements, 5,000 men in the State, and has, by this time, at least 7,000. Against these, Col. ARBOLEDA and the other Reactionist commander have not more than 4,000 men; Besides, ARBOLEDA, with nearly 4,000 of these, is completely hemmed in between Cali and Popayan; and must in, or shortly be taken prisoner. He lately endeavored, with a portion of his forces, to open communication with the State of Antioquia, which is also in arms against MOSQUERA, but was defeated and driven back by Col. [illegible]. Cali and Popayan, as well as all the river Dagua, to the coast, including Barbacoas and the same towns of BUENAVENTURA and Tumaco Gen. GUERRERO cuts of the retreat of ARBOLEDA to Pasto, being between him and that province, with 1,500 men. The Demand of Ecuador for $100,000, for an invasion of her soil by reactionary troops from Pasto in Cauca, of course could not be met, and Ecuador has consequently invaded Pasto, which indeed is supposed to be the end sought in making such a preposterous demand; and as MOSQUERA gets no little aid from FLOREZ in crushing his enemies in Cauca.

A passenger by the Anne says that the Centralists, or Anti-Mosquera men, of Pasto and Tuquerres, are preparing to repel the Ecuadorian invasion. By decree of July 3, Gen. ZARAMBA "called out" 2,000 men for that purpose; but it will probably prove a farce on the part of ZARAMBA.

OUR ASPINWALL CORRESPONDENCE.

LATER NEWS FROM BOGOTA—THE OPERATIONS OF MOSQUERA IN THE STATE OF CAUCA—FIGHTING—INVASION OF ANTIOQUIA—RENEGUIDES BY THE REACTIONARY LEADERS—THE LIBERAL CAUSE IN THE ASCENDANT.

ASPINWALL, Sunday, Aug. 10, 1862.

The British mail steamship Solent, which left Cartagena on the 4th instant, arrived in this port next day. She brings dates from Bogota to 16th July. The fact that Gen. MOSQUERA, Provisional President, has marched a very large force into the State of Cauca to engage the armies of ARBOLEDA, CAMAL and ROJAS, is confirmed. Also, the report that his principal General, LOPEZ, had had an encounter with the forces of ARBOLEDA and CAMAL, though the Reactionists claim the victory. They have even magnified it into a great defeat of LOPEZ. The facts, however, on sifting the matter, are found to be that Gen. MOSQUERA did not intend his troops should engage the enemy until his Generals should be in such force as make victory certain. He consequently ordered LOPEZ, who had taken up a position at the foot of the Cordilleras, in Cauca, with less than three thousand men, to fall back if attacked, until reinforced; but this order LOPEZ found it inconvenient to obey, as it would be depriving to his troops, and correspondingly elate and strengthen his adversaries. Accordingly, the combined forces of ARBOLEDA and CAMAL, on the 25th June, fell upon his encampment and cut off his Fifth and Tenth battalions. But these, nothing daunted by their perilous position, cut their way through ARBOLEDA's columns, then in turn charged on his advanced guard, driving it a long distance back on his main force, leaving only twenty of their own men on the field, while ARBOLEDA had 50 killed. Both armies then resumed their positions, LOPEZ subsequently falling a little back to a stronger point. The united forces of ARBOLEDA and CAMAL were over 2,500 men.

Gen. MOSQUERA has, altogether, about 8,000 men in Cauca; and against him, all told, cannot be over 5,000. He had promised to end the war in thirty days, and rumor, by way of the Pacific Coast, says he had reached Popayan, to take the command in person. He did leave Bogota for that purpose on the 24 of July, but he could not have joined the army so soon as is reported.

Gen. NIRO, from Carthagena, had entered the only other dissenting State, Antioquia, with a considerable force, and as soon as he set foot there a pronunciamiento at Rio Negro, in his favor, greeted him, giving him much strength. The reports from Antioquia were that there were only about 600 men embodied there for resistance to NIRO and MOSQUERA. This is the richest State in the Republic, but it being entirely inland, MOSQUERA has found it quite easy to cut off its foreign supplies, so that the people are suffering much for all manufactured goods, especially for blankets and clothing. The soldiers and officers, dressed in fancy, flaring cotton prints, the only goods obtainable for uniforms, very much resemble the clown of the pantomime. Speaking of NIRO, who inaugurated the revolution at Carthagena against the Constitutional Government of OSPINA, and who has done almost as much as MOSQUERA himself in consolidating the new Government, it is hinted that he is dissatisfied with the treatment he has experienced from his chief, and that he is only seeking a good opportunity to join his enemies. These reports come from the enemies of the Liberal cause, and probably have but little foundation.

The National Convention, which by decree, was to meet in Carthagena, on the 6th August, has been postponed in order that by the close of the war, Cauca and Antioquia may be enabled to have representatives in it. It is not likely it will get together before October.

As Señor JUSTO ARROSEMENA, of Panama, who was sent from this State as its agent to negotiate upon the terms to be granted to the State on its acceptance of the Government of MOSQUERA, has taken his place as one of the Council at Bogota, to manage the affairs of the Government in the absence of the Provincial President, the inference was drawn that he has made a favorable arrangement for the State; but from a letter of his to the Governor of the State, just published, it appears he has agreed that Panama shall be guided by the action of the Cathagena Convention.

In Bogota, and indeed, in the whole State of Cundinamarca, perfect quiet prevails. The State Assembly was to meet in a few days to elect representatives to the Convention. Señor CAMACHO ROMOS, formerly Governor of Panama, and one of the ablest men in the country, has been appointed its Secretary of State.

The Legislature of the State of Boyaca has elected Gen. SANTOS GUTIERREZ, as Governor of the State, and Gen. SANTOS ACOSTA, Vice-Governor. You will see that we have many saints on both sides.

In the State of Santander, in which Col. CAMAL kept up so long and successful a war against MOSQUERA, everything is quiet, and there is not a man in arms against the Provisional Government. The Assembly was on the eve of meeting to select representatives to the National Convention.

We have more reports of executions of men, military and civil, in Cauca, by Gen. ARBOLEDA. It is reported by way of Carthagena that he has executed Gen. PAYAN, whom he lately took prisoner; but it is scarcely possible he can have done this. ARBOLEDA is charged with having executed more than 200 persons since he has been in command in Cauca, about a year. If taken by MOSQUERA's forces, Gen. ARBOLEDA, although a relative of MOSQUERA, will meet the same fate. MOSQUERA has been heard to swear that he will show him no mercy. Gen. ARBOLEDA is a man of great literary talent and genius—has lived in the United States and Europe, and his appearance little indicates him to be the sanguinary man he is represented to be.

A good deal of dissatisfaction is reported to prevail, and undoubtedly does prevail against Gen. MOSQUERA on the coast, growing out of his forced distribution of paper money, and his many decrees, some of which are very detrimental to trade and commerce.

On the whole, however, the cause of the "Liberal" party, headed by MOSQUERA, seems to be largely in the ascendant, and to be on the eve of establishing itself permanently as the ruling party in this Republic.

I should have mentioned that the official gazettes of Bogota are full of declarations from priests and curates in various parts of the country of acquiescence in the rule of MOSQUERA—which is a good sign for him, as they have mostly been violently opposed to him heretofore.

And I also neglected to mention the fact in the proper place, that Col. VIRGO, who more than a year ago was driven out of Santa Marta by MOSQUERA's troops, and took refuge in Panama, has lately landed at Rio Hacha, in the State of Magdalena, with some arms from Curacoa and Venezuela, and is endeavoring to engage the Indians of that Province to use them against MOSQUERA's Government. It is said he brought four hundred men from Venezuela, but this is probably an exaggeration. Col. BLANCO, with a body of men, has been sent from Cartagena to watch VIRGO, and an armed schooner has also been sent to Rio Hacha for the same purpose.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE CHAMPION—PROPOSITION FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF THE PANAMA DIFFICULTY, ETC.

ASPINWALL, Monday, Aug. 11, 1862.

The Champion leaves this morning, having waited for the arrival of the Ariel, in order to be on hand for the two runs of passengers expected from California, in case the Ariel might also have met with an accident.

On Friday, an agent of the Legitimate Government of the State, whose capital is at Santiago, arrived at Panama, with propositions to Provisional Governor DIAS to settle the quarrel between the two parties. The proposition comes from Don FRANCISCO FERRERO, Gov. GUARDIA's Military Commander, and is to the effect that a State Convention of the people be called, to decide upon the course Panama will take in reference to the Government of MOSQUERA. He says he will be content with the decision of the people in council, but that he will stand to his arms if no spirit of accomodation exists on the part of Gov. DIAS. It is understood that the proposition will be rejected. The making of it shows a consciousness of great weakness on the part of the Constitutional Government, and tends to elate and strengthen the revolutionary party.

Gov. DIAS dispatched one hundred more men to Chiriqui, on the Panama Bay coast, yesterday, to reinforce CORONAS, who went there to look after the movements of Gov. GUARDIA.

The fine new British propeller Crusader, of Hone's Liverpool, West India and Aspinwall Line, has nearly discharged her 2,500 packages of goods for this port, and will leave in a day or two for Kingston, Jamaica and England.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Honduras and Guatemala Quiet—The Next Presidency of Nicaragua—Costa Rica, &c.

PANAMA, Sunday, Aug. 10, 1862.

The Panama Railroad Company's new steamship Salvador arrived at Panama, on the 5th, from her first voyage. She brings the usual cargo of cochineal, coffee, sugar, hides, &c., and a few passengers. Her dates from Guatemala are to the 8th of July—Salvador to the 20th—Nicaragua to the 30th, and Costa Rica to the 31 of August. The news is meagre and uninteresting.

HONDURAS AND GUATEMALA.

Honduras was quiet under the Vice-Presidency of CARRILLANCO. Like all the Central American States, Honduras was suffering from lack of bread and rice and other agricultural products of prime necessity for the poor.

Guatemala was also quiet. Mr. CROSBY, the United States Minister, gave a good dinner and elegant ball to his countrymen and the chief officers of the Government, and principal citizens, on the 4th of July.

SALVADOR.

President BARRIOS continued his visits to the principal towns and agricultural districts of Salvador, and was everywhere received with fêtes of gratification. At San Miguel the merchants gave him a ball, "which cost more than $1,500, and was attended by all the ladies of the city, dressed in blue and white." On the 20th July, a fête was given to him at a country house. "The dancing commenced at 12 o'clock at noon, and lasted till 9½ in the evening."

The difficulties about the priests agreeing to obey the laws of the Government had not yet been arranged.

NICARAGUA.

There was a good deal of talk about the next Presidency, but the general opinion was that Gen. MAZIRES would succeed himself, without revolution.

Stories were in circulation that American filibusters were about to invade anew Nicaragua, led by Gen. HERNDEZ. Perhaps there will be a chance of this, after HERNDEZ has played his part with Jeff. DAVIS.

Capt. EDWARD J. FULLER, who once commanded Liverpool and London packet ships out of New-York, had gotten his new gold machinery to Chontales, and great results were expected. In the District of Chontales, so great was the scarcity of food that one-quarter of the inhabitants had gone to Granada and the Island of Omotepe. Even plantains sold six for a real.

COSTA RICA.

Congress had adjourned, and the country was getting along quietly.

Miss MARY J. CROWDER, a beautiful and finely educated young lady of New-York, who went to Costa Rica in August last, has married Señor JUAN SEZZANO, a lawyer of San José.

An Italian Opera Company was in full blast at San José.

The new Peruvian Minister to Costa Rica, had introduced himself favorably to the fashionable society of San José, by giving a ball at which 700 persons "assisted," and costing $8,000.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Loss of the British Steamship Lima—Meeting of the Peruvian Congress—The New Cabinet of Chili—The Argentine Republic, &c.

PANAMA, Sunday, Aug. 10, 1862.

The British mail steamship Valparaiso arrived at Panama from South American ports on the 5th. She brings dates from Valparaiso and Santiago de Chili to July 20, and from Callao and Lima to July 23. The British steamship Anne brings dates from Guayaquil, Ecuador, to July 21.

ECUADOR.

There is but little news from this State. Ecuador is one of the countries where newspapers do not seem to thrive—probably for the reason that the people don't care much for dry Government decrees, about the only things that editors in those latitudes find it generally safe to publish. The country seems to be quiet, politically as well as commercially. Business is exceedingly dull in Guayaquil, money scarce, and no demand for exchange.

PERU.

The principal news was the loss of the British Steamship Company's magnificent vessel, the Lima, which occurred on the 11th July. The Lima Comercio gives the following particulars of this accident:

"While running at common speed the vessel struck upon a reef of the Lagarto Island, situated some fifty five miles southward of Cobija.

The forward part of the vessel becoming immediately filled with water, that overflowed the machinery, and it being evidently impossible to save her, the boats were got out and manned, and the female passengers and children being placed in the first boat, while the male passengers went into the second. A little inlet of the island, about a mile to the northward, offering a shelter, they were all landed there in perfect safety. Having thus saved the passengers, attention was next had to the mail, the treasure, the passengers' luggage, and what articles of cargo could be removed, all being safely landed at the same little island harbor. When about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, it became obvious that the vessel was going down, the Captain, first officer, and those of the crew that had remained on board, abandoned her.

Boats were sent to Cobija in quest of succor, and on the 13th, four days after the disaster, the American ship Moonlight, that had been chartered in Cobija for this purpose, reached the scene of the wreck. The persons and stores on the little island having been now embarked in this vessel, the Moonlight took her in tow, and they reached Cobija in safety on the 16th.

The steamer San Carlos was appointed to conduct the passengers and mails of the Lima to their destination, and was to leave Cobija on the 20th."

The Lima was insured. She had been running for ten years on this coast, between Panama and Valparaiso, and last year was sent to England, where she was put in excellent repair, and her machinery, &c., improved. At the time of her loss, she was commanded by Capt. WILD, who, on making the island, retired to sleep, giving the course to the first officer, who, it is said, took the responsibility of deviating from it, and thus lost the vessel.

The Peruvian Congress was duly installed on the 28th of July. Don MIGUEL DE CARPIO was elected President of the Senate, and Don JOSE MARIA PARRA President of the Deputies. President CASTILLA sent in a lengthy message, in which there is nothing particularly noticeable, except the strong language against European intervention in America.

The Penitentiary in Lima, to hold 350 convicts, has just been completed after seven years' labor, at an expense of over a million of dollars.

The Government continued to borrow small sums of money from the merchants for its present expenses in anticipation of the eight million loan, soon expected from Europe.

Business in guano, from the number of vessels at the Chincha Islands, seems to be increasing. The merchants, however, in Callao and Lima, complain of dull times. Exchange on London, 40 to 41 pence per dollar, Bolivian silver.

There is no news from Bolivia.

CHILI.

The new Cabinet has been duly installed, with Don MIGUEL A. TOCORNAL, Secretary of State; Don MIGUEL M. GUZMAN, Secretary of Justice, Worship and Public Instruction; Don MANUEL MATURANA, Secretary of War and Navy; Don JOSE V. LASTARRIA, Secretary of the Treasury. These appointments give general satisfaction.

Congress was deliberating on making its technical [illegible]

the interests of the country in trade, agriculture, mining and commerce. Coronel, the great coal port, was to be made a first-class port, the export trade of that place, in coal, copper bars, brick, &c., last year, amounting to $1,020 16, while the imports reached $672,828. A Custom-house is also recommended at Melipulli, in the new province of Llanquihue.

The Senate rejected the project for a National Bank.

The papers of Valparaiso, as well as the Secretary of the Treasury, complain of the great smuggling operations carried on by the British mail steamers, on the coast, they taking advantage of the liberal privileges given them by the Government, to cheat it out of its legal dues. Great complaint is also made of the overbearing conduct and lack of accommodation as well as loseness on their part in the fulfillment of their contracts with the Government. One little British steamer gets $40,000 per year subsidy for only twelve trips a year between ports only 240 miles apart. There is a great trade on this coast, which persons or companies owning American steamers might avail themselves of profitably.

The Secretary of the Treasury reports the whole income of the Government in 1861, at $8,856,231 16, being $1,517,324 43 less than in 1860. The imports in 1861 were $16,676,622. The exports, $[illegible].

The domestic 3 per cent. debt of Chili is $6,742,325. The British debt about $12,000,000, of which $7,000,000 was contracted in 1858 for the completion of the Valparaiso and Santiago Railroad.

Business the past fortnight has been dull. Imported goods, especially dry goods, dull of sale. The low price of copper has caused the stoppage of experts of poor mineral, and coals for furnaces are consequently dull. Money is plenty enough, on good security, at 8 per cent. Best flour $4 10 per quintal six months. Barley low and dull. Rice 6 to 11 dents. Lumber plenty and dull. Copper Bars, $17 37½, cash. Freight for England and Hamburg, £4 to £4 5. Exchange on London, 60 and 90 days, 45 to 45½ pence per dollar.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Advices from Buenos Ayres are to 20th May and from Rosario to 23 June. The General Congress, called by President MITRE, was in session. The Government had approval of the arrangement made with Gen. PAZ[illegible], at San Luis, the only chief in arms against it. Good progress is made in the building of railroads. The city of Buenos Ayres is to have abundance of good water introduced into it.

LATER FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.

No Probability of Saving the Golden Gate's Treasure—British Columbia and Oregon, &c.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Aug. 18.

Arrived ship Thacher, MAGOWN, from Cork.

Sailed, ship George Lee, for Hong Kong, carrying wheat and other California products, and $170,000 in treasure.

Trade is dull. Butter, 27c. Tobacco firm. Candles slack.

JAMES DENGUS, one of the wealthiest pioneers of California, died on Saturday, aged 38 years. He was noted for the munificence of his charities.

It is believed by the saved passengers of the Golden Gate that the treasure that was on board of her is buried deeply in the sand, and that there is scarcely a possibility of saving any of it.

Capt. HOBSON chartered a schooner at Manzanilla, and has made several trips to the wreck.

The news from British Columbia is to the 12th inst. The reports from Cariboo are rather favorable. More gold has been received from that district this year than for the corresponding period of last year. A scarcity in provisions is said to exist.

SAN FRANCISCO, Tuesday, Aug. 19.

Arrived, steamer Pacific, bringing $100,000 in treasure and $64,000 from Oregon.

Sailed, ship Mary L. Sutton, for New-York, with a cargo of 1,400 bales of wool, 20,000 hides, and a variety of domestic products; ship Flying Cloud, for Hong-Kong, with wheat and flour, and $146,000 in treasure.

A fire broke out in the St. George's Hotel, Sacramento, on the 17th inst., damaging the building considerably, and also some dry goods in the first story. Loss, $20,000.

A water-spout burst in the sparsely-settled portion of Los Angelos County, on the 18th inst., fifty miles from the ocean, filling the long ravine with water 14 feet deep. A man and woman riding in a carriage were caught in the flood, and the woman and horses drowned. The man floated more than a mile to a place of safety.

THE MILITARY EXCITEMENT.

ARRIVAL OF REGIMENTS EN ROUTE FOR THE SEAT OF WAR.

SIXTEENTH MAINE REGIMENT.

The Sixteenth Maine Regiment, numbering 1,040 rank and file, arrived in this City yesterday afternoon on the steamer Bay State from Fall River. The organization of this regiment was commenced nearly three months since, and is the first regiment that has left that State since the last call for volunteers. It is composed principally of farmers and lumbermen, who present a hardy appearance. The Colonel of the regiment, A. W. WILD, belonged to the Staff of Gov. WASHBURNE, and the Lieutenant-Colonel and Major have seen service as Captains in the Second Regiment of that State. The regiment was landed at Jersey City, whence they took the cars for Baltimore and have ere this arrived in Washington. The following are the principal officers:

Colonel, A. W. WILD.

Lieut.-Colonel, C. W. TILDEN; Major, A. S. FARNUM; Adjutant, A. R. SMALL; Surgeon, Chas. Alexander; Assistant Surgeon, J. BAGLEY; Chaplain, Rev. Mr. BULLEN; Quartermaster, Thos. Tucker. Co. A, Capt. I. Williams; Co. B, Capt. Charles H. Hutchins; Co. C, Capt. Daniel Marston; Co. D, Capt. Rand; Co. E, Capt. A. D. Leavitt; Co. F, Capt. Belcher; Co. G, Capt. Thos. Wentworth; Co. H, Capt. J. Ayer; Co. I, Capt. W. H. Waldron; Co. K, Capt. Whitehouse.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTEENTH NEW-YORK REGIMENT.

This regiment, which was recruited in Albany, arrived here in a steamboat from that city yesterday afternoon, on its way to Washington. They were landed at Jersey City and took the New-Jersey Railroad last evening for Philadelphia. The following are the line officers, the Lieutenant-Colonel not being yet appointed:

Colonel—Lewis O. MORRIS.

Major, Edward A. Springstead; Adjutant, Frederick F. Tremain; Quartermaster Sergeant, Wm. Stevens.

Line Officers.—Captains—Murphy, Jones, Morris, McCullock, Moore, Bell, Shannon, Fenyn, Maguire, Austin.

First Lieutenants—Stokins, Kennedy, Nugent, Sherr, Lockrow, Wright, O'Hare, McEwen, Dodhanie, Barclay.

Second Lieutenants—Reed, Orr, Bell, Crouton, Mount, Mullins, Ball, Hobbs, Ferris, Crane.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTH NEW-YORK REGIMENT.

This regiment, which left Rochester on Tuesday evening, arrived here late last night, and took up their quarters at the Park Barracks, where they will receive their arms to-day, and depart for Washington this evening. The regiment was recruited principally in Rochester. The following are the Field and Staff officers, with the exception of the Lieutenant-Colonel, who has not yet been selected:

O. H. PALMER, Colonel.

Geo. B. Force, Major; John T. Chumasero, Adjutant; Joseph S. Harris, Quartermaster; J. F. Whitbeck, Surgeon; Dr. Arber, First Assistant Surgeon; W. S. Ely, Second Assistant Surgeon; James Nichols, Chaplain; Charles S. Ayres, Sergeant-Major; Theron R. Parson, Quartermaster Sergeant; A. T. Wells, Commissary Sergeant; W. V. Andrews, Hospital Steward.

The above regiments are but the vanguard of the new army of volunteers which will continue to flow through this City for the next three weeks. Five more regiments from Maine are expected here within a week, commencing with the Seventeenth, which is due to-day.

Connecticut has four new regiments ready, the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth, which will start for the seat of war during the coming week, and four more which will be ready the week after. Banners for all these regiments have been ordered, but the recruiting has been so rapid that there has not been time to manufacture them, and they will have to be sent to the regiments after they have taken the field.

Massachusetts, which has already sent forward one regiment under the new call, has a dozen more nearly ready to take the field, who will soon make their appearance in our midst; and as for New-York, almost every county has its regiment, under way, and most of them are already nearly full. [illegible]

the streets of our City will bristle anew with bayonets recently like numerous than of a year ago. It is gratifying to be able to state, however, that there will be none of those tedious parades and long-winded speeches which characterized the reception of regiments last year. The time for talk has passed, and the only greeting appropriate for the soldiers who now pass through this City on their way to the war is a "Godspeed" from all our citizens, and that they are sure to get.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS IN THE CITY.

PROGRESS OF ENLISTMENTS.

There was no diminution of the lately aroused enthusiasm for volunteering to be noticed yesterday. Recruits for regiments in the field came in rapidly, and a very large number joined the new organizations being raised in the City and neighborhood. There was an immense hubbub of business to the United States mustering office, and the officials there had hard work to inspect and swear in all the applicants brought to them for that purpose. All the camps where the new regiments are stationed were in a marvelously lively condition. Squads of men desirous of being enrolled arrived every hour, and the Adjutants and Doctors there were kept busy until nearly dark.

QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE.

A great amount of requisitions for clothing and equipments were yesterday, as they have been every day, filled by the indefatigable officials of the Quartermaster's Department. The increased facilities for meeting these requisitions, supplied by the coming of the auxiliary office on Canal and Lispenard streets, have lightened the burdens of Gen. ANDREWS and his immediate aids; but the amount of actual work done is more overwhelming than ever.

UNITED STATES QUARTERMASTERS.

The United States Quartermasters have a remarkably laborious time of it—quite as much to do under employes in the "State" Department. The superintendence of the Park Barracks is now in their hands, and adds materially to their range of duties. They sent off yesterday about 300 recruits for regiments now in the field.

WANT TO BE DRAFTED—EXAMPLES WORTHY OF IMITATION.

The following communications were yesterday received at Police Headquarters by Mr. Superintendent KENNEDY. The spirit evinced in these letters is worthy of emulation:

To John A. Kennedy, Esq., Chief of Police, New-York:

SIR: My father having refused me his permission to volunteer, and being anxious to serve my country in its present need, I wish to be drafted if possible. I have paid military dues in New-York City for two years past; have passed an examination by an army surgeon and ought not to be left out. Not knowing whom to address, I have taken the liberty to trouble you. I would feel honored in receiving any communication from you which your duties will allow.

Respectfully, &c.,

The other communication is as follows:

John A. Kennedy, Esq., Provost-Marshal, &c.

DEAR SIR: You will have the kindness to have my name enrolled, as I have got no exemption from the coming draft, and oblige, yours respectfully,

MICHAEL BROSLY,
Corner of Forty-sixth-street and First-avenue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO AID THE FAMILIES OF THE METROPOLITAN GUARD.

The patriotic sentiment of the people of the Twenty-eighth Precinct has commenced to develop itself in a most satisfactory manner. Late yesterday, subscriptions were opened to aid of the families of the gallant Metropolitan Regiment now being raised. The following gentlemen promptly subscribed and paid down the following sums in aid of said object:

Wm. H. Muller & Co	$100
R. P. Gilley & Son	50
E. C. Lamson	50
J. H. Holcomb	50

It is the intention of Capt. DIXON to publish in full a list of all subscriptions at an early day next week.

MILITARY AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

The city was all alive yesterday. Recruiting officers were seen everywhere, some with one, two, and even with six or eight men, on the way to the different head-quarters. The recruiting seats in the City Hall Park increased to nine, and the drums in front of each kept up the music from morning till night. Tents have also been pitched in Washington Park, the City Park, at the Navy-yard, and at other eligible points. The whole city, in fact, begins to wear a military aspect. The people are aroused, the wealthy men are coming forward with their contributions, and the consequence is that men of the right stamp are enlisting in squads.

The scene about the headquarters of the Empire Brigade and the Senatorial Regiment was animating. Recruits came flocking in so fast that it was with difficulty that they could all be attended to. Sixty-nine men were sworn in for the First Regiment, Col. JOURDAN, and seventy-eight were passed by the Surgeon of Col. COZZ's Regiment from the day previous. The four regiments of the Empire Brigade now average 500 men each, and it is confidently anticipated that the First Regiment will be filled within a week. At the present rate of recruiting, it will be more than filled within that time.

Col. COZZ, of the Senatorial Regiment, has been laboring under a number of disadvantages, which, up to this week, has greatly retarded his progress. He has as yet no permanent quarters for his men. Some are kept at the City Armory, some at the Arsenal, and others at headquarters, corner of Court and Joralemon streets. An order has been made for a sufficient number of tents, which it is expected will be received on Friday or Saturday, when a camp will be promptly formed on Fort Green, the site occupied by the Fourteenth Regiment eighteen months ago.

Mayor KALBFLEISCH has, on his own responsibility ordered 168 A tents and 14 wall tents for the officers and men of the First Regiment of the Empire Brigade. They are to be furnished on Friday, when a camp will be formed on the parade ground at East New-York. The barracks are becoming too crowded, and it is therefore necessary to divide other quarters. The regiment is ordered to parade on Friday, as will be seen by the following order:

HEADQUARTERS FIRST REGIMENT EMPIRE BRIGADE,
Aug. 20, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 1.—All commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates of this regiment, are hereby ordered to assemble at the barracks, at East New-York, for the purpose of attending a regimental parade on the afternoon of Friday, the 22d inst. Every member of the regiment must be present unless previously excused.

By order JAS. JORDAN, Colonel Commanding.
J. HAYLEY, Adjutant.

The Mechanics' Bank of Brooklyn, yesterday cashed 175 checks for bounties to recruits, and the day previous 93, amounting to a total of $7,500.

The friends of Lieut. URQUHARTS, of the First Fire Zouaves, who was captured at the battle of Bull Run, will be gratified to learn that he has been exchanged, after 12 months' imprisonment, and is expected to be in Brooklyn on Friday of this week.

WAR MEETING IN ITHACA.

ITHACA, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

A great war meeting is being held here to-day. All business is suspended.

THE GUERRILLAS IN THE SOUTHWEST.

LOUISVILLE, Wednesday, Aug. 20.

The rumored capture of Gen. NELSON by the rebels near Gallatin, on Monday, is utterly false. A tolerably well-authenticated report says that Col. GARRARD, with six or seven hundred men, attacked Scott's Louisiana Cavalry yesterday, at Laurel Bridge, near Linden. After quite a severe fight he defeated them, splitting the rebel regiments in two parts, which skedaddled in different directions. There are no particulars of the losses on either side.

The steamers Sky Lark and Sallie were burned by guerrillas the night of the 16th, at the mouth of Duck Creek, 50 miles above Fort Henry. The Sky Lark was heavily laden with Government stores. She got aground, and an officer unloaded a portion of her stores, when he was attacked by forty guerrillas. The crew being unarmed were compelled to surrender. The guerrillas, after removing the furniture and silver ware, set fire to both the boats. The crews were released on parole.

The steamer J. R. Dickey reports all quiet.

There was a slight skirmish on the 16th, thirteen miles from Memphis, with a part of JEFF. THOMPSON's Cavalry. The rebels were routed, having one killed and two wounded.

A dispatch from Smithland, dated 19th, says that a rebel force, six hundred strong, have taken Clarksville, and are advancing on Fort Henry.

A dispatch from Fort Donelson confirms the capture of Clarksville, and says the rebels are moving on that work. There are only 150 effective men there. Reinforcements have been asked for.

The Grenada Appeal of the 17th publishes "Stonewall" JACKSON's official report of the battle of Cedar Mountain. He claims a brilliant victory.
